League Timid, War Likely.
Cheer Up Britain.
The Fighting B. & O.
Socialism Americanized.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PROFESSOR BARNES, of Smith College, says there are more causes for war now than there were in 1914 and greater danger of war, and the League of Nations is too timid to do much.

Borah, not Kellogg, wrote the Paris peace pact. A Chicago lawyer, Salmon O. Levinson, invented it.

And Barnes agrees with Prof. Borchard, of Yale, that the Kellogg pact, in cold reality, "contains the first international indorsement and moral recognition of certain forms of war."

THE learned Barnes says the next 50 years will decide whether democracy or dictatorship shall survive.

That has already been decided 1,000 times. When finally decided, democracy will win. Dictators die, democracy lives on, always ready to bob up.

IF you think the League of Nations can do anything ask yourself why it does not stop Russia's attack on China, with poor China yelling for help.

The answer is that the League is afraid of Russia. Nations in the League would not dare send their men to get killed for China's sake. The men would not go.

They hope this foolish country will do that. But it will not.

BUT we shall soon be in the World Court, with "reservations" that have no force. And the next step will be costly trouble.

You might write your two United States Senators what you think about it, if you happen to know their names. But that probably would do no good.

WE are destined to get a little more international education. The last lesson cost us ten billions lent, and fifty billions spent ourselves and our one dollar a year patrioteers.

We ought to stay out of the League, and out of the World Court, which is a League backdoor, and attend to our own business. But we shall not do that.

THE British, in comic opera fashion, object to American activities near the South Pole. Plaintively one British editor complains that Byrd went down there "without so much as a by-your-leave." Britain, of course, was supposed to give us leave to visit the Antarctic.

IT may comfort our interesting, sometimes preposterous cousins, to know that Byrd's latest flight gives us no claim to the South Pole.

To claim new territory, the discoverer must land, plant the flag of his country on the new soil, claiming it in the name of king or government.

Byrd only flew around near the Pole in a circle and perhaps flew over it. That does not make us owners of the Pole.

HOWEVER, that is nothing to worry us. In its slow, circular motion, the Pole moves around, through the thousands of years, pointing at various stars, which in turn become the Polar Star. In a few thousand years, today's polar regions may be warm, fertile, habitable, as they were ages ago. By that time men, by blood mixture, may have come to form one race and one nation on this small globe, with their fighting ended.

WHEN William the Conqueror went to England he found many nations dividing those islands. Now one nation rules there.

What happened to the British islands may happen to this larger island, the earth.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission plans to reduce the country's railroads to eighteen or nineteen systems with five big trunk lines in the East.

The nineteen systems are about eight too many. One would be enough, with our ablest railroad men working at it.

UNDER the calm surface of high railroad management there is an interesting struggle with Brother Willard, of the Baltimore & Ohio, said to be wicked in trying to get more than his share of the national railroad pudding.

IN the old days of Gould and Vanderbilt railroad powers fought more roughly, but no more determinedly than such men as Willard and Atterbury fight for their systems. The Pennsylvania and New York Central don't want it, don't believe it, perhaps, but some day they will wake to find Willard and the B. & O. with a Manhattan Island terminal.

SAD news for Russia and all European wild ones that want the proletariat, the workers, to "arise, and throw off their chains," take Karl Marx for prophet, and Stalin for earthly director.

Abraham Cahan, able editor of the Jewish Daily Forward, the principal Socialist newspaper of America, says restricted immigration has caused Socialism here to become Americanized.

It will be hereafter an American Anglo-Saxon Socialism "with an American soul."

10 DEGREES, MORE SNOW FORECAST

Two Additional Deaths Laid To Exposure; Highways Still Dangerous From Ice

Another cold wave is due in Pittsburgh tomorrow, the Weather Bureau announced today.

Temperature of 10 degrees is predicted for tomorrow morning.

A comparatively mild Sunday followed the near-zero weather of last week, and at 3 a. m. today snow began falling. An inch of snow fell. Temperatures declined and a further decline in the mercury is promised this afternoon, when there will be additional snow flurries.

Colder tonight and Tuesday was the forecast issued today.

TRAFFIC JAMMED

Traffic jams probably were the worst ever caused by a single snowfall. Bigelow boulevard, Brownsville road, Boulevard of the Allies—these and other busy thoroughfares, were packed with slowly-moving cars, and thousands of workers were late for their offices as a result.

Trains also were delayed by weather conditions.

DEATH TOLL GROWS

Two additional deaths were added yesterday to those already caused by the intense cold. Both were men who died from exposure, according to reports made to the county morgue.

Patrick Curley, 50, of 314 Sixth street, Braddock, was picked up early yesterday from beside the

The tragedy occurred while the party was on its way to the city of Batangas for the wedding ceremony. The dead included six women and one man. Ten others reached shore safely.

Shot Misses Pastor In Church Pulpit

TRURO, N. S., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The attorney general's office today was investigating the firing of a shot through a window of St. Stephen's Anglican Church last night, which passed close by the rector, Rev. Herbert Feaver, who had just mounted to the pulpit. Women and children in the congregation became alarmed, and it was with difficulty that Rev. Mr. Feaver restored order.

JOSEPH G. ARMSTRONG AT HIS DESK

DECLARES TECH DEATH NATURAL

Death of Paul Ott, 19, engineering student at Carnegie Institute of Technology, whose body was found on the doorstep of Welsh Hall, was due to natural causes, Homicide Sergeant Samuel Wheeler, said today.

Wheeler said that during his investigation he learned that the youth had been subject to attacks of gastro enteritis. In his last two attacks, Wheeler said, the youth ran to the outside of the house.

Coroner's Physician W. J. McMeans, who conducted the post-mortem examination, said he found a "strange substance" in the youth's stomach. The contents of the stomach have been sent to the city chemist for examination.

Positive statements that a poison had been discovered, attributed to Coroner W. J. McGregor, were denied by that official.

Ott was found, clad in pajamas, lying on the doorstep of Welsh Hall, by M. G. Fairchild of Mexico, who is visiting with Fred, Latham, a resident of Welsh Hall. Fairchild and Latham notified police.

BULLETIN.

City Council today adopted a resolution urging Councilman Daniel Winters, city controller-elect, to assume office at the earliest possible moment to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Controller Henry O. Evans.

An amendment was passed authorizing employment of John Schilpp, Jr., deputy controller, discharged by Evans, for the preparation of a debt statement.

Making it plain he was not authorized to speak by Councilman Daniel Winters, Mayor Charles H. Kline today expressed belief that Winters will assume the city controllership by Friday.

Kline called attention to the fact that 10 days will have elapsed Friday, since Winters was notified officially by Prothonotary John Vogt of his election as controller.

VARE-WILSON COUNSEL CALLED

Philadelphian, Still Crippled From Stroke, Will Take Floor in Own Defense

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Preparing to make a final report on the Vare-Wilson contest in the 1926 Pennsylvania senatorial election, the Senate Elections Sub-Committee called counsel for the two men to appear at a hearing late today.

Senate leaders, meanwhile, were in conference looking to adjustment of a program for consideration of the long pending Vare case which will come before the Senate tomorrow.

VARE TO TAKE FLOOR

Senator-elect Vare, who has been ill for more than a year, reached the city prepared to go before the Senate and defend himself. Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, planned a conference with Vare later today.

Vare has requested a recount of ballots in 31 additional counties in the contest brought by William B. Wilson, his Democratic opponent.

Two contests confront Vare. One is over the Norris resolution to deny him a seat on account of expenditures of more than $600,000 in his 1926 primary race, and the other over a contest brought by Wilson in the election.

NORRIS TO RUSH ACTION

There have been signs of a disposition by the Senate to defer the Norris resolution, to be taken up tomorrow, if the elections committee can make a report within the next few days on the contest. Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, however, said he has the votes to go ahead tomorrow with his own resolution regardless of the status of the Wilson contest.

Vare will make a personal appeal to the Senate in his own behalf. His appearance will give a dramatic touch to the battle, since he is partially paralyzed on the left side and must walk with a cane. He arrived in the capital last night and came to the capitol this morning.

High Court to Scan Sen. Reed Tax Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today granted the petition of the government for review of lower court decisions holding that Senator David A. Reed, (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, could not be forced to pay a tax upon a $2,500 fee paid by the State of Pennsylvania for assistance in prosecuting an inheritance tax case against the Henry Clay Frick estate. Reed contended he was acting under appointment by the Attorney General, and therefore was a state officer.

CLEAR WRECK WHERE 9 DIED

ONLEY, Va., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Salvage crews today were removing the last of the wreckage of a train that left the rails, piling up eight coaches with a death toll of nine persons and an injured list of 24. The train was bound from Cape Charles, Va., on the Pennsylvania Railroad for New York with excursionists.

Calm orders, "save women and children first," shouted by Karl F. Chenoweth, boatswain's mate, attached to the battleship Oklahoma, probably saved scores from death in the stampede that started in an overturned third car, said A. V. Kemp, of Norfolk, a survivor. Chenoweth was injured himself.

Doctors said that Mrs. Kemp was saved from death by the sailor, who tied a handkerchief above her half severed wrist.

Four hundred and eighty-eight passengers were speeding up the Eastern Shore peninsula of Virginia early Sunday when they were thrown from their seats under a shower of flying glass as the cars struck a broken rail and careened.

TROLLEY PILOT LOSES WAY

A new motorman on a one-man car, and the heavy snow today tied up street car traffic between Oakmont and Wilkinsburg.

The motorman, starting from the Rankin barn at 5 a. m., lost his bearings in Wilkinsburg, and things began to happen.

He was headed for Trafford City, but at Penn and Swissvale avenues he made a mistake by turning north instead of south.

Near Sandy Creek, William Bryner, first man out from the Oakmont terminal, was waiting on a siding to let a car from Wilkinsburg pass. Out of the snow he saw a strange car, which passed him like a flash. Knowing something was wrong, he telephoned sidings along the route to Oakmont, and the track was made clear for the mysterious car.

At Oakmont, an hour's run from Wilkinsburg, the car came to the end of the line, and had to stop. Then the motorman found his mistake. The car, with one-end operation, had to be towed backward to Wilkinsburg.

PLANES HUNT BROOKVILLE WILDS FOR AIRMAN

Lindy's Former Colleague Feared Forced Down in Snow-Blanket Hills

BROOKVILLE, Pa., Dec. 2.—An air mail plane piloted by Thomas P. Nelson was lost somewhere in the treacherous, snow-blanketed hills of Western Pennsylvania today. Three planes were searching along the route from Brookville to Cleveland in an effort to locate the missing ship.

Nelson, once an associate of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was flying in a blinding snowstorm as he headed westward along the air-mail route which passes over Clarion, south of Franklin, and over Mercer to Cleveland. Reports of a ship's passing were received from Clarion and other points near Franklin, but it was not learned definitely whether it was that piloted by Nelson.

PLANE SIGHTED

The mail plane was due in Cleveland at 2:15 a. m. It was sighted at Brookville at 12:45 a. m., according to officials of the National Air Transport Company. A plane passed over Clarion shortly after that time, and residents at the River Ridge farm, near here, reported a ship flew low over that place at about 1:45. Farther along the airmail route the proprietor of a lunch room reported he heard a plane passing about 2 a. m.

It was near Polk, about eight miles from Franklin, that the air-mail ship piloted by William C. Hopson crashed a year ago last October. Hopson was killed and his plane wrecked. The wreckage was not located until more than 24 hours after the accident occurred. The section is covered with dense forests.

Nelson formerly was one of a group of pilots that included Col. Lindbergh, engaged in carrying mail out of St. Louis. He was co-pilot with the famous flier on one trip, according to his friends.

Pipe Cuts Congressman's Artery in Fall on Ice

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Several members of Congress were bruised and shaken by falls today on ice-covered steps and pavement on their way to attend the initial regular session of the Seventy-first Congress.

Representative Hill, of Washington, was taken to a hospital after he had been painfully injured in a fall.

A pipe Hill was smoking was driven into his throat with such force by the fall that a small artery was broken. Hospital attendants said he was not thought to be seriously injured, but that he would remain at the hospital for several days.

Representative Hull (Rep.), of Illinois, was so badly jarred by a slip outside his home that he was treated by the house physician after reaching the capitol.

He was able, however, to attend the session.

TAX REDUCTION PROGRAM PRESENTED TO CONGRESS

BOTH HOUSES IN SHORT SESSION

Senate Wearied by Long Toil With Tariff Bill During Summer; Message Tuesday

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Both House of Congress at noon today started their six-month grind.

Immediately after the House opened its session, the administration's $160,000,000 tax reduction program was placed before it in a resolution introduced by Rep. Hawley (Rep.), of Oregon, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

The resolution prepared by the Treasury will be taken up in committee Wednesday. Hawley expects the House to pass it Thursday, and it is the hope of administration leaders to have it through the Senate before Christmas.

SENATE WEARIED

The contrast between the Senate and House as they resumed their labors was marked.

The Senate was wearied by many long months of fighting over the tariff, with only a week's vacation, and showed it by remaining in session a scant nine minutes. After the adoption of the usual formal resolutions it adjourned.

The House, fresh from a long vaction, was in a different mood. There was a lot of horse-play and back-slapping on the floor, and the atmosphere was redolent of the opening of school. The House, too, adjourned soon after the adoption of the usual opening resolutions.

TAX LAW UNCHANGED

A joint committee composed of the leaders of the two Houses was appointed to go to the White House and notify the President that the lawmakers are back in session and ready to function.

The Hawley tax cut resolution, entered so promptly in the House today, does not change existing law except to provide that the Treasury shall collect less on corporation and individual income taxes this year than the law provides.

The reduction proposed in the resolution is in accord with previous announcements. The corporation income tax is cut from 12 to 11 per cent for one year and normal income taxes are reduced one per cent.

The resolution provides:

Normal income tax, cut from 5, 3 and 1½ per cent to 4, 2 and ½ per cent.

Corporation tax cut from 12 to 11.

Insurance companies, cut from 12 to 11.

Insurance companies other than life or mutual cut from 12 to 11.

MESSAGE TOMORROW

Tomorrow President Hoover will transmit to the Congress his annual message on the state of the nation, embracing a general review of national conditions and his specific recommendations as to what should be accomplished legislatively. The message of the President will be read to each chamber separately by reading clerks, Hoover having chosen not to follow the ancient practice of delivering his message in person.

the treacherous air conditions along his route.

On November 6, Nelson cheated death by leaping from his blazing plane with his parahute near Ringtown, Schuylkill County. His plane, carrying a valuable cargo of mail, caught fire from an undetermined cause, he reported.

Radio appeals were broadcast today for persons throughout this region to be on the lookout for the missing plane.

Game protectors, deer hunters and New York Central Railroad men also were asked to join in the hunt for the missing flier.

MANY SIGHT PLANE

C. W. Weston, owner of a lunch room on the Pittsburgh road near Franklin, reported a low-flying plane at 2 a. m. today. From other points nearby came reports of a plane flying very low at 1:45 a. m. Belief prevails that this was the lost ship and that it may be down not far from the scene of the Hopson crash.

E. E. Underhill, east-bound air mail pilot, reached Bellefonte from Cleveland this morning, suffering from cold. He reported passing through a blinding snowstorm near Clarion, Pa.

When an octopus purrs, and is good, the public should appreciate it and say "nice octopus, do it again."

A. T. & T., big telephone octopus, managed by Walter S. Gifford, has cut rates throughout the country, chiefly on calls between states.

FORTY-FIVE MILLION calls are affected. The public will save $5,000,000 a year to begin, and more as service increases.

Five million dollars a year is five per cent on $100,000,000. It is not easy for a competent octopus to lose interest on that sum.

GIVES SELF UP IN MURDER

A man, aged about 40, walked into the office of George W. Murren, chief of county detectives, today and said that he wanted to give himself up to face a charge of murder 12 months old.

He said he was Frank Magliazzo, of Carnegie, indicted in February for the shooting of Santo Ferrandolo, of 45 Oak way, Homestead.

Ferrandolo was shot in Montclair street in September, 1928. In a dying statement he accused Magliazzo, detectives reported.

Attaches of the coroner's office recalled that the only testimony against Magliazzo was Ferrandolo's statement.

Soviet Seize Princess For Reading Bible

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Reading the Bible to children or Soviet workers was said by the Daily Mail today to have caused arrest and imprisonment in Moscow of Princess Sophie Lieven, sister-in-law of Sir Kynaston Studd, who was lord mayor of London last year.

A Riga, Latvia, dispatch to the Mail said the Soviet political police took her and lodged her in the Lubianka jail on general charges of Christian missionary activities.

Her family here had no word of the arrest, but said they had not had regular direct correspondence recently with the Princess Sophie. Sir Kynaston married as his second wife in 1924 the Princess Alexandra Lieven. MORROW PLANS TO QUIT POST FOR SENATE

Mexican Ambassador Leaving Diplomatic Corps After London Peace Journey

International News Service.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2.—Dwight W. Morrow will resign his post as United States ambassador to Mexico in order to accept appointment to the United States senatorship from New Jersey immediately upon his return from London, where he is going to attend the five-power naval disarmament conference, it was learned at the embassy here today.

Morrow's successor here will be appointed shortly. He is expected to be J. Reuben Clark, special legal adviser to Ambassador Morrow and former under-secretary of state.

Clark has been in Mexico for some time studying the agrarian problem between the United States and Mexico. He acted as Ambassador Morrow's right hand man in the settlement of the long disputed petroleum question. Morrow leaves for Washington Friday.

CAPITAL STIRRED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—The announcement in New Jersey that Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, now in Mexico, will be appointed to the United States Senate immediately upon conclusion of his duties as a delegate to the London naval conference caused a political sensation in Washington.

Morrow will succeed David Baird, Jr., named to the Senate place relinquished by Walter E. Edge, who was sworn in today as ambassador to France. Baird announced he would resign as soon as Morrow was ready to enter the Senate.

FRELINGHUYSEN TO RUN

At the end of the unexpired term, Morrow, if he wishes to stay in the Senate, must defeat former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who announced some time ago his candidacy for the Republican nomination and who said last night that he had not changed his plans.

Ambassador Edge called upon President Hoover after being sworn in.

"If I will have to practice the diplomacy that you read about in books," the new ambassador said, "I don't suppose I'll be very successful, but if it's a matter of applying horse sense as the best way to approach our international problems, I imagine I shall get along all right."

WINTERS BARRED

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt has ruled that Councilman Daniel Winters, elected to succeed former Controller Evans, on January 1, cannot legally take office at this time by virtue of his election.

Waldschmidt has suggested that he can, however, resign from Council and be elected by Council and Mayor Charles H. Kline to fill the office until January 1.

Until some action is taken the Controller's office will remain open for minor routine business under guard of City-County building watchmen. Watchmen were placed on duty late Saturday after Edward Townsend, superintendent of the Bureau of City Property, had asked Evans to relinquish the office.

As Evans was leaving a controversy between him and Townsend arose over the possession of a key to the city's check writing machine. Evans contended that he should not be required to turn over his key to the machine until the signature plate bearing his name was destroyed or turned over to him.

Blinded by Steam, Drives Into Trolley

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 2.—Steam from a Baltimore and Ohio locomotive passing beneath the Youghiogheny River Bridge as W. S. Walls drove his automobile across it blinded the driver yesterday morning, and he crashed into a slowly-moving West Penn street car. Walls was cut about the head and face by flying glass.

THINKS HIS WIFE STABBED GIRL

He suspects that his wife, Mrs. Mildred Taylor, 24, of 133 South Seventeenth street, stabbed Margaret Taylor, who according to police is also known as Margaret Fisher, 21, of 414 Suismon street, Charles Taylor, 29, testified in Morals Court today.

Taylor reported to police last night that Miss Taylor had been stabbed and that he suspected that his wife was the person who did the stabbing.

The Taylors have been estranged for some time. Mrs. Taylor was arrested at her home early today charged with being a suspicious person.

At the hearing in Morals Court Taylor testified that Miss Taylor saw Mrs. Taylor walking with a tall stranger yesterday.

Miss Taylor had told police that she had been stabbed by a tall stranger, who rushed upon her while she was walking in Moravian way last night.

Magistrate A. D. Brandon, after listening to the unusual testimony, turned the case over to the Detective Bureau for investigation.

Pool Sellers Clash, Mayor Cleans Town

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 2.—Rival "clearing house" pools began bickering over "profits," then Mayor Luther S. Crawford took a hand. He ordered wholesale arrests of everyone implicated.

During last week Uniontown persons are said to have won $2,700 through the "Pittsburgh" pool, in territory supposed to belong to a New Jersey outfit.

A dozen raids resulted. Books, with their carbon-paper attachment, were seized.

Mayor Crawford says he intends to put an end to all "pool" playing.

It's a hard blow to "fortune tellers"—only today two players paid a "fortune teller" handsomely to "reveal" the lucky numbers.

Both lost.

HOOVER HITS AT FEAR IN BUSINESS

President's Prosperity Drive Aims at Elimination of Needless Alarm in Trade

HERE is the second of a series of interpretative articles explaining the effect of the Hoover business uplift conferences at the White House.

The Hearst newspapers have asked a group of widely-known economists to outline what they see as the result of the presidential summoning of captains of industry, farm and labor heads to Washington.

The immediate future of the United States is predicted in this series of articles. It is of vital importance to every citizen of the United States.

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.
(Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.)

President Herbert C. Hoover stands at the business crossways, beckoning leaders to the highway to the right which leads to stability and business progress and cautioning them against the spur to the left which is headed toward depression.

Mr. Hoover, in a boldly conceived series of conferences with the first men of industry, agriculture, finance, and labor has assured leaders that the trade omnibus is strong enough successfully to traverse the highway which he recommends.

Having pledged their support to his program, the outstanding men of the business world have been convinced of the feasibility of the Hoover plan. If the multitudes, as is usually the case, follow the fashions set by leaders, it can be assumed that the new engineering plan for modifying the business cycle will get a fair test in the months that lie ahead.

NINE BILLION PLEDGED

Already the expenditure of $9,000,000,000 next year in public and private improvements and construction has been pledged. Public works alone will be increased from $1,500,000,000 to $3,000,000,000.

Economists have discovered that the decline in the physical volume of trade from periods of prosperity to interludes of depression is relatively small, and that an accelerated construction program can go a long way to offsetting the deleterious effects of a temporary shrinkage in consumption.

In the past, both speculative adventures in the stock market and in the realm of legitimate business were stopped by an exhaustion of the credit supply. Accordingly, after the bubble used to burst, the country found it necessary to go through a period of retrenchment, forced by a lean credit diet.

This time, with America in possession of one-half the world's supply of monetary gold, there is no scarcity of credit, but in fact a superabundance of credit. * * *

FUNDS AMPLE

Instead of finding itself without an adequate reservoir of credit, the business community is confronted with a larger supply of funds than has been available for its uses for nearly two years. Since the October 24 break, the stock market has disgorged itself of borrowed funds with amazing rapidity, thus releasing huge amounts of credit for business purposes at distinctly lower interest rates.

Accordingly, the activities, such as building, the farm loan system, and foreign and domestic governmental borrowing, will be stimulated, rather than retarded, by the new credit situation. And Roy A. Young, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, has reported that his advisors expect credit to be still easier.

Mr. Hoover has recognized that the greatest assets of America consist of its mobilized man power. He has taken steps to keep the business genius and the business energy of the country organized for constructive purposes.

As the extra-legal commander-in-chief of the economic forces of the country, the President has in effect issued the subjoined orders:

"Proceed courageously, though prudently, in carrying out necessary and desirable plans for permanent improvement. You may do so in the assurance that, in spite of temporary lulls, the long term future prosperity of the country is beyond doubt.

"The technical equipment of the economic army is excellent, and you may proceed in the full assurance that goods and fodder—in the form of loanable funds—are in abundant supply. Go forward; keep labor employed at existing wages; and have faith in America."

Fayette Conspiracy Charges Boomerang

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 2.—The grand jury Saturday turned on George Work—prosecutor of County Commissioners George W. Hibbs and John S. Langley; County Treasurer John Q. Adams and Road Engineer Lou Clemmer—ignoring charges and placing costs on the prosecutor.

It was charged that the county commissioners violated the law in purchasing automobiles from Mr. Adams, and with conspiracy in connection with alleged padding of Fayette County road work payrolls.

FORMER AID TO BYRD FOUND

Brophy, At One Time Second In Command of Antarctic Party, Explains 'Suicide'

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Given up for dead last summer, Richard G. Brophy, once second in command of the Byrd expedition to the Antarctic, today was speeding to New York, where it was thought he would clear up the strange story surrounding his four months' disappearance.

Brophy was given up for a suicide in New York August 25, when his clothes were found in a locker room at a Coney Island bath house. This was after he resigned as business manager of Commander Byrd's expedition in April, 1929.

The Coney Island bathhouse incident was the last heard of Brophy until last Friday night, when the news of Byrd's flight across the South Pole was received in the news room of the Omaha Bee-News, Omaha, Neb.

FOUND BY EDITOR

Looking over a number of Byrd expedition photographs, the news editor recognized a man standing beside Commander Byrd and Mayor Jimmy Walker, of New York, as a copy reader on the Bee-News desk known as "Manning Mitchell."

The editor compared the likeness with "Mitchell" and was convinced. He confronted Brophy with the evidence and the former explorer admitted the truth of the identity.

Brophy, tears in his eyes, then told a story of having been beset by trouble after leaving the Byrd expedition at Dunedin, New Zealand, and wished to find solace in dropping his true identity.

RECONSIDERED SUICIDE

"My nerves were shattered and I wanted to rest," he is quoted as saying in Omaha. "I was tired and unable to find relief from the pressure that seemed to hem me in.

"I foolishly considered suicide, but when I walked in the water at Coney Island I realized that life's problems are not to be solved in this way.

"I shall explain to my good and dear friend, Commander Byrd. I am going back to New York and get my tangled affairs straightened out," he is quoted as saying. "I must begin where I left off that day I went for a swim at Coney Island."

WIFE DESTITUTE

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Mrs. Richard G. Brophy, wife of the one-time vice commander of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, who was discovered in Omaha yesterday after having been reported a "suicide," heard the news of her husband's discovery today "somewhere" in New York.

Last Friday Mrs. Brophy was discharged from a private sanitarium in White Plains where she had been sent at the expense of the Byrd expedition following her husband's disappearance.

Saturday she visited the office of Capt. H. H. Railey, Byrd's New York representative, but since then she has not been seen.

She explained to Capt. Railey that she was destitute and intended seeking work to support herself and her son, Richard Gale Brophy, Jr., who is now with her parents in Canada.

FILM BLAZE CONFINED TO CABINETS

International News Service.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 2.—Sixty-nine children, many of them cripples, were carried to safety by nurses early today when the Hospital for Crippled Children here was damaged by a fire that resembled in many ways the disaster that claimed 125 lives at the Cleveland Clinic last May.

The fire originated in the X-ray room and firemen were forced to wear gas masks to protect them from fumes given off by blazing film.

As soon as an alarm had been sounded, nurses and other members of the hospital staff went through the wards gathering up the patients and carrying them to a new wing of the institution, where there was no danger of the fumes penetrating.

The firemen succeeded in confining the flames to the X-ray room, where films that have accumulated in the last five years were stored in steel filing cabinets.

OIL GROUP MAY NAME SINCLAIR

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Jail sentences and alleged scandals mean nothing to the board of directors of the American Petroleum Institute, it would appear here today, after many members expressed themselves informally on the subject of the re-election of E. L. Doheny and Harry Sinclair.

Although the convention does not open until tomorrow, many of the directors attended committee meetings today

"While none can foresee what the 525 members of the board of councillors—who both nominate and elect the board of directors of 62 members—will do," said one official, "there is a good precedent upon which I feel one may rely.

"These same men were up for re-election two years ago when the oil scandals were being discussed everywhere and the trials were approaching. They were re-elected then and I feel sure they will be re-elected now, provided they wish to be."

HUNTER KILLED ON DEER QUEST

CARLISLE, Pa., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The first human victim of the deer hunting season fell soon after dawn this morning as the Pennsylvania big game season opened.

William T. Nailor, of Mechanicsburg, was shot near Brantsville in the South Mountain section, and died while being brought to the Carlisle Hospital.

Nailor, with a party of Mechanicsburg friends, had just entered the woods when they heard a volley of shots fired by members of another party. Nailor fell, wounded in the left side.

Surviving are a widow and two sons, the elder a student in Dickinson College.

LEWISTOWN, Pa., Dec. 2.—(INS.)—The first reported kill of the 1929 big game season was made at Milroy, near here, today—by an 11-year-old schoolboy.

Gerald Armstrong was on his way to school when he saw a large buck deer. He ran back to his home for his gun and brought the deer down with one shot at a distance of 300 yards.

The buck weighed 190 pounds and its antlers were tipped with eight perfect points.

TWO TESTIFY IN ROTHSTEIN QUIZ

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—A witness for the state in the murder trial of George A. McManus testified today that on the night of November 4, 1928, he saw a man in the first floor hallway of the Park Central Hotel who said, "I'm shot," and held his stomach as though in pain.

The man, the state says, was Arnold Rothstein making his painful way from room 349, where McManus allegedly had shot him over a gambling game, to the street, where he was found by police and taken to a hospital.

He died two days later.

The testimony was given by Vincent Kelly, a Park Central electrician who was running an elevator in the hotel.

He had followed to the stand Mrs. Marian A. Putnam, of Asheville, N. C., who had testified Friday she saw a man resembling Rothstein staggering down a third-floor hallway the night of November 4 a "terrible" look on his face and his hands clasped to his abdomen.

VATICAN GEMS RECOVERED

ROME, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Jewels stolen from St. Peter's in 1925, including the Episcopal Ring of St. Peter's, rich with sapphires and diamonds, have been recovered by the Roman police. They were identified by Monsignor Bocchini, custodian of St. Peter's treasury.

Thieves broke into the treasury of St. Peter's on the night of July 3, 1925, and stole various precious objects whose value was estimated up to $150,000.

Eduardo Bruscoli, who was held for complicity at the time of the robbery and later was released, was arrested again yesterday after he had been shadowed by detectives over a long period.

The Episcopal ring was found hidden in a wall behind dish towels in a kitchen. Thereafter Bruscoli confessed the sale of two valuable pearls and two emeralds. All four have now been traced.

CHINA PEACE MOVES BEGIN

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Actual negotiations for peace between China and Soviet Russia began today when two Chinese members of Parliament, bearing full powers from the Manchurian government at Mukden, crossed the border into Siberia and were met by a Russian plenipotentiary, according to an Exchange telegraph dispatch from Riga.

The Chinese agents were cordially greeted by M. Simanovsky, delegate appointed by Soviet Russia to discus sterms of an armistice and peace preliminaries, the message continued.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—The American government, acting on its own initiative, has dispatched communications to Russia and China reminding them of their obligations to maintain peace under the Kellogg-Briand treaty, to which both are signatory.

It is understood that Great Britain has taken similar action, although both governments proceeded individually and not jointly, as announced in the British House of Commons today.

British Communists War on Laborites

LEEDS, England, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Frank Bright, delivering the presidential address at the opening of the Communist party congress here, called for a grimly determined fight against the Labor government. He charged the government with responsibility for the murdered miners in South Wales and with conducting a fight against workers in the colonies.

The congress indicated its concern over a recent decline in the party's influence over the working class.

WOMAN SLAIN; SEEK ATTACKER

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 2.—The scantily-clad body of an unidentified woman, aged about 40, was found in the snow at the entrance of the Donor Oil Company's gasoline station on Walnut Creek Hill, nine miles west of here, today.

Employes of the company found the body when they reported for work this morning.

The woman, who wore a wedding ring, was clad in a blue calico dress that had been partly torn off. Her shoes and stockings lay nearby. Her coat, blood-stained, was 100 feet away near the edge of a ravine.

State troopers said they believed the woman had been attacked and murdered. They began a hunt for the slayer as Coroner Dan S. Hanley took the body to his undertaking rooms for an autopsy.

Coroner Hanley described the woman as having black hair and eyes. She evidently was an American. She was five feet six inches tall and weighed 140 pounds.

Director Pattberg of the "Rheinpreussen" coal mine had received a package containing a live pigeon with a letter demanding that he attach 5,000 marks to the bird and set it free, failing which he would be shot. Herr Pattberg notified the police who chartered an airplane and followed the pigeon.

When the pigeon reached the town of Hochheide it flew to a dovecot which was photographed from the plane. The owner of the dovecot was arrested and confessed.

Free Advice Given Wth Marriage Ceremony

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 2.—(AP)—A doctor prescribes medicine, a tailor suggests fashions, a chef recommends foods. Why shouldn't one who goes in for marrying couples supplement the act of "tying the knot" with helpful advice about home making?

That is exactly what an enterprising young San Antonio lawyer does. A sign on the door of his office reads:

"Adolph A. Garza, director of marital ceremonies."

A rehearsal directed by Garza precedes a marriage ceremony and after that is over, the "director" suggests the best place for a home and other necessities.

1,360 SLAYINGS BY DRYS AMAZE CONGRESS

House and Senate Members Condemn Killings Over Law Declared Unenforceable

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Revelations by the Washington Herald that 1,360 persons have been killed in 10 years' effort to enforce Volsteadism—a total compiled from official records—has astounded members of Congress.

"Shotgun enforcement" was scored by senators and representatives. Surprise was expressed at the huge toll of life shown by the survey. Advocates of true temperance flayed the killings as a "reign of terror" in an attempt to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment by the present Volstead act.

Staunch supporters of Volsteadism, while deploring the loss of life, defended gun-play only as an act of self-defense.

SHEPPARD GIVES VIEW

Senator Sheppard (Dem.), of Texas, known as the father of the Eighteenth Amendment, was among the dry leaders who insisted that enforcement officers should shoot only in self-defense.

He declared, however, that an analysis he had made of killings by federal agents showed less than one per cent of cases in which federal officers had fired other than in self-defense.

Senator Tydings, (Dem.) of Maryland, who holds that present methods have failed to produce results, declared:

"Just as we today look back with horror upon the part of our country's history which records burning of people in New England for witchcraft, so will a future generation look back upon the taking of human life on this great scale in our day.

"If an officer would shoot a civilian for exceeding the speed limit or for expectorating on the sidewalk, the whole country would rise in arms. Yet we are permitting by analogy the killing of hundreds of citizens for offenses like these without protest, except from a few individuals."

Senator Hawes (Dem.), of Missouri, said:

"Under our form of constitution, we guarantee protection of the rights of minorities as well as majorities. The Volstead Act not having taken into consideration the rights of minorities or majorities, these killings reported by the Washington Herald are but a natural consequence of such a law.

"I am astounded by the great number of persons killed in the attempt to enforce the prohibition laws."

Representative Sol Bloom (Dem.), of New York, said:

"The Washington Herald's expose is obviously authentic. It should be spread upon the records of Congress, so that posterity may see how this generation sank to fanaticism in attempting to enforce an unenforcible law.

"These revelations will stir the country. They reveal a condition which can be corrected only by modification of the law. We can look forward to many more deaths in prohibition enforcement, unless it is modified in the interest of true temperance."

Fanatic Chops Off Hand That Offended Him

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Louis D. Batteau, 55, walked into the Kramer Sanitarium here and calmly showed physicians his left arm from which the hand had been chopped.

He declared he had taken the advice of the Bible and chopped off his hand because it had "offended" him. Physicians branded the man a dangerous religious fanatic.

MABEL SCORES RUM SMUGGLING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Liquor smuggling from the high seas and over the Canadian border continued to be one of the serious prohibition enforcement problems during the past year, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt declared today in her last report as assistant attorney general in charge of dry activities.

Mrs. Willebrandt, who resigned July 1 to enter into the private practice of law, prepared the section of Attorney General Mitchell's annual report pertaining to prohibition. She has been succeeded by G. W. Youngquist, former attorney general of Minnesota.

SMUGGLING GAINS

"As indicated by the last report, the volume of contraband liquor smuggled over the Canadian border was steadily increasing in volume during the year," Mrs. Willebrandt said.

"Most of the difficulty arises in the waterways of the Great Lakes system. Special efforts are being made to co-ordinate more effectively the preventive forces of the United States. It is hoped that very substantial progress may be reported in the next annual report."

The report showed there were 17 seizures of foreign liquor ships, compared to 22 in 1928, 31 in 1927, 33 in 1926 and 35 in 1925.

Mrs. Willebrandt said small boats were still the chief source of trouble. Large vessels were abandoning the traffic, owing to increased risk.

St. Pierre-Miquelon, in the mouth of the St. Lawrence River, continued to be the main base of supply for rum smugglers.

"The chief defect lies in the fact that the treaty permits the official clearance through Canadian customs of intoxicating liquor consigned to United States and intended to be illegally introduced here. The matter is still being considered by the Canadian government."

56,786 PROSECUTIONS

During the year 56,786 prohibition prosecutions were instituted. At the end of the year 18,690 cases were pending. Out of 47,100 convictions, 43,183 defendants entered pleas of guilty. A total of 4,835 cases were nolle prossed; 3,043 dismissed, and 1,477 ended in acquittals. The government collected $4,200,000 in fines and sentences aggregated 8,663 years. There were 4,889 trials by jury.

Mrs. Willebrandt said that one of the most noticeable gains in enforcement was in the use of padlock injunctions, the number in effect at the end of the year having been 6,303.

She expressed belief that the appointment of special assistants to the attorney general to assist in prohibition prosecutions would help clear congested court dockets.

Jap Mink Coats $535

This is one of the feature prices which have caused the thrifty to gossip, this season, about Horne's low-priced Jap mink coats.

We have been concentrating all season on coats of this favorite fur. That is why we can provide such excellent values, and why this is the best place to choose Jap mink coats for Christmas gifts.

The coats in this group are of rich, deep-furred skins, so supple that with all their luxurious appearance they are not bulky. . . . All in staple, straightline models, with deep collars which can be worn rolled close or draped luxuriously about the shoulders. Women's and misses' sizes.

to be children and their parlors at Thompkins Corners will be given the same treatment at 9:30 through KDKA.

Not for a long time have we had such a treat as the Select Singers plan to give us at 10:30 through WCAE. It is Lua Lehman's "In a Persian Garden," the musical setting by Eleanor Smith's translation of the "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam."

Two numbers on the Voice of Firestone will surely register. "Painting the Clouds With Sunshine" will be a Vaughn de Leath solo while Franklyn Baur has chosen Herbert's "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life."

Alvin Crocker's new song ballad, "Down the Lane to Home, Sweet Home," will be sung by Oliver Smith during the Gypsies' program on WCAE.

A touch of Spanish General Motors over WCAE at 9:30, and an Hawaiian Legend, the Empire builders from KDKA at 10:30 complete an interesting evening's entertainment.

President Hoover's message to Congress will be read over WJAS tomorrow between 12 and 12:30.

We Now Present

A $5,000 Shock Free

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS worth of imported rug laid in the WJAS studios has an electrical charge sufficient to generate a potential of several thousand volts. Artists have received genuine shocks by touching the microphone after walking across this rug. Sometimes the spark jumps a quarter of an inch between finger tip and the object touched.

NO ONE HAS BEEN KILLED or injured at this little bit of fun which is indulged in frequently by the studio staff. And none ever will be hurt because the charge developed in the body by trodding across the carpet is purely a potential or static—the same as that developed in dressing the hair with a celluloid comb. The charge has no wattage, or power.

WISE BOYS WITH LIBRARY degrees who experienced the little thrill decided that it was caused by an electrical feedback from the [illegible] adjacent to the [illegible] Bill when the power in the control room and in the studio was shut off and they still got up a shock they looked for something better than a book exhibition.

H. J. BRENNAN, manager of the station, experienced in static electricity through his long association with the handling of rugs at Pickering's elucidated for everyone.

"WHY IT'S STATIC electricity [illegible] the rug," he smiled as demonstrated by rubbing his shoes on the carpet and then [illegible] his finger to a metal [illegible] with a click. "Haven't you experienced the sensation before when smoothing a cat's fur [illegible] paper on glass?"

"I had a real thrill recently in New York. Without thinking that I had developed in my body a charge of static electricity by walking almost a city block on mats in going to my hotel room. I got the greatest scare of my life when I slipped the key into the latch and bounced back four or five feet from the shock. Dazed, I thought for a moment that I had been led to the Sing Sing execution chamber."

THOSE SCINTILLATING blue eyes danced like marionettes as Mr. Brennan finished his little joke. Gayly then, friends in the studio paced back and forth on the $5,000 rug to generate electricity that put a sting in the finger tips every time they touched the "mike."

ONE COLLEGIATE fullback in bearcoat and hat was disappointed because he couldn't generate enough electricity to get a thrill, whereupon it was discovered that he was wearing rubber galoshes and was thoroughly insulated. When the galoshes were removed he got what he was looking for.

ROAD AID FUND APPORTIONED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Secretary Hyde has ordered an apportionment among the states of a fund of $75,125,000 authorized by Congress as federal aid for construction of roads in the fiscal year of 1931.

Calling attention to President Hoover's suggestion for acceleration of public building programs to promote business the secretary said state highway departments would be given authority to make immediate preparations for expenditure of the money. He added there still was an unexpended balance of $26,000,000 from funds previously apportioned, which added to the new fund, made a total of $101,125,000.

With an allotment of $4,545,830, Texas will receive the largest amount under the secretary's apportionment. Next in order are New York with $3,605,965 and Pennsylvania with $3,314,707.

M'BRIDE MARKS ANNIVERSARY

Roger H. McBride, superintendent of the Parting of the Ways Home, celebrated the sixteenth anniversary of his monthly visitation to the Allegheny County Workhouse as the prison chapel yesterday. More than 800 inmates attended the services.

Only two Sundays out of 832 have been missed by the prison worker, his attendance at the workhouse the absences being due to illness.

Urging the prisoners to change from Arrowdoing to righteous living, Superintendent McBride pointed out many examples of former prisoners, some of whom had served sentences in the workhouse and were known to many of the present inmates there, who had made good after being assisted in the Parting of the Ways Home, and are now successful in business, some being ministers, lawyers, doctors and church workers.

"These men have made good and so can you," declared the prison worker. "All they needed was a chance and some practical aid at the parting of the ways and they made good because they had learned that a life of crime and wrongdoing exacts its pay in confinement and that they could not 'beat the game.'

"No matter what you are or may have been, there's a place for you in the Parting of the Ways Home, where you will be fed, clothed, lodged and a position procured for you, and where you will be maintained without charge until you receive your first pay envelope. The Parting of the Ways Home has rules to be observed, just as prisons have, and any violation of the rules means the forfeit of your chance for help in the home."

The Rev. William Buzza, chaplain, presided at the services. Music was furnished by the workhouse orchestra and choir.

TOWNSHIP BODY ELECTS

William Edward Armstrong, of Baldwin Township, was re-elected president of the Allegheny County Association of First Class Townships at the annual election Saturday in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Clarence W. Scheck, of Mt. Lebanon, was named vice president.

Bock, South Fayette Township; James W. Bryan, North Versailles Township, and Charles Gibson, of Collier Township, members of the executive committee.

SOME HISTORY INVOLVING MAE MURRAY BEFORE FILM FAME CAME

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Dorothy Herzog.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 2.

WHY not a little back-page history? Occasioned by the sight of "Billy" Fleischman, W. K. figure in New York and Paris life, who now swears by the Gold Coast. A friend of Fleischman espied him lunching in the Brown Derby and did some back-page reminiscenting.

Years ago, Mr. F. opened New York's first smart dance club. It was called Sans Souci.

Mae Murray, who had flashed into glorified prominence as the Nell Brinkley girl in Florenz Ziegfeld's show, was engaged with her partner, Jay O'Brien, as a featured dance attraction for the club.

Mae Murray

Shortly after this, Miss Murray married O'Brien. Later, she went into pictures. Later still, she divorced O'Brien and married Bob Leonard, O'Brien, today, is married to the millionaire widow of Julius Fleischman, which makes him some kind of an in-law to his former boss. Bob is married to Gertrude Olmstead. Mae to her prince. And everybody seems happy.

Wash Bill Cut By Wall Street

BOB ARMSTRONG remarked about Hollywood producers appearing in public of late with their coats buttoned. Jimmy Gleason opined "they lost their shirts in the Wall street slump." Community laundry please write.

There's an episode in the latest Gleason two-reel comedy that Jimmy says actually happened years ago. Booth Tarkington and a convivial group of males persuaded Roy Atwell, the actor, to go to the club for a few rounds of liquidified clinks. The rounds increased to the point where Atwell mumbled in a distressed quaver: "Gotta get ter Havana termite." The boys swore he would. He did. They taxied him to the ship departing for that city, dumped him in a stateroom, pinned a ticket and a fifty dollar bill to his lapel and left him. The next morning Atwell wondered where the hades he was. And the missus ditto. Havana, in this instance, had been a Broadway musical comedy, not a journey, but the boys didn't know that!

All By Lonesome And Her Books

BECAUSE she begins work in Arthur Hammerstein's initial United Artists' musical comedy, "Bride 66," in a week or so, Lois Moran canceled her trip abroad. Instead, she loaded the rumble seat of her roadster with books and motored to the Yosemite by her lonesome.

Lois Moran

That little Moran girl has come a long way since the lachrymose days of "Stella Dallas." Hammerstein is enthusiastic over her voice and her dancing. He has offered her a stage salary equal to her movie ditto (around $3,000 a week) to star in a musical comedy for him on Broadway when he completes "Bride 66." Lois' Fox contract has another eight months or so to run. Whether or not she accepts Hammerstein's offer remains to be seen.

It may or may not be true. At all events, 'tis being bandied around. Arthur Ceasar, the town crier for the Ceasarian body (his own), has been engaged by William DeMille to work on that megaphoner's next picture. Arthur met Cecil DeMille at the studio and is quoted as saying:

"Mr. DeMille, I hear you have set a precedent to have only yes-men around you. That doesn't jibe wth my precedent. I'm not a yes-man. I'm Ceasar, a north and south man!"

Arthur is still with DeMille.

JACK MULHALL complains the longer he golfs the worse he gets. But he's ker-razee for the game. . . . After two months in a house, Vivian Seegal abandoned domesticity as a hopeless job, so to an apartment she moved. The servant problem isn't nearly so disturbing—in an apartment. . . . Alice Joyce arrived at a party

Juvenile

David Durand, who appeared with Maurice Chevalier in "Innocents of Paris," is seen in support of Belle Baker in "The Song of Love," new picture on the Harris screen.

BELLE BAKER IN HARRIS TALKIE

By CHARLES A. EARLEY.

A plot is what Columbia Productions, Inc., needed and almost failed to find for Belle Baker, vaudeville favorite, in "The Song of Love," her first talkie, which is current in the Harris. It must be a hallucination in Hollywood that the public never tires of themes having to do with the business of life behind the wings and back stage.

And worst of all they have turned Belle Baker into a female Al Jolson. There's a breaking heart in her every smile and a sob in her voice each time she bursts into song. And that is often. Aside from all this there's even a "Sonny Boy," but for purposes of originality he isn't Davey Lee. Several times one expected Belle Baker to get down on her knees, clasp her hands and shout "Mammy."

Although Miss Baker is starred, little David Durand, as her lovable son, walks away with honors. Ralph Graves, recent hero of "Submarine" and "Flight," plays the male lead.

Sonny Boy Again

The story woven around Miss Baker's efforts is only a threadbare one to give her a chance to sing as many times as possible within a given length of time. She and Graves are cast as a pair of small-time vaudeville performers who are well on their way to big time. Young Durand assists them in the act. The usual complications develop when Miss Baker decides that "Sonny" is not getting the proper education. Against her husband's wishes she takes him out of the show and retires. Hubby seeks a new partner in the form of a blonde. After a short time in her company he decides to divorce the wife. Both agree that "Sonny" must not know of their estrangement because he thinks Daddy a hero. To further impress the audience with her sorrow when the separation comes, Miss Baker bursts forth into song and tells them all about it. She goes back to work in a single, sends "Sonny" to military school and finally lands at the Palace, Mecca of all vodvil hoofers, etc.

In the meantime Graves has become a victim of the Demon Rum and has become a bum, to make a weak rhyme. By a faux pas "Sonny" finds his dad no longer a hero. He swallows his grief, however, and in an ending, dripping with the usual movie hokum, brings father and mother together again.

New and Old Songs

Miss Baker sings her old stage stuff and a lot more and does it well. She proves herself nearly as good an actress as singer. Too bad she hadn't a better vehicle in which to display her histrionic talents!

The stage show is much more peppy for this bill than on previous occasions. Victor Graff, master of ceremonies, leads his new Harrisonians; recently acquired from the Sheridan Square, in a number of hot tunes, introduces the personnel individually and tops matters off by playing the violin. Eltinge and Vernon, adagio dancers, receive a big hand as well as the other acts on the bill. An organlogue, by Earl Mitchell, Fox Movietone News and a Movietone report of the recent dinner, tendered Johnny Harris by the Pittsburgh Variety Club, complete the program.

Racketeer

Dorothy Mackaill is the star of "The Love Racket," presented on the screen of the Enright as the photoplay feature.

'LOVE RACKET' ENRIGHT FILM

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

"The Love Racket," starring Dorothy Mackaill, is the principal screen attraction in the Enright, having opened Saturday in that theater. It is a talkie—and a rather weary one at that. It has a love nest, situated high on a mountain, with the purest thing about it being the mountain air. It has a murder, which you don't see committed and which doesn't get much of a solution in the plot action. And it has courtroom melodramatics, slopped over with ineffective histrionics and sentiment.

Miss Mackaill is seen as a girl who thinks she loves a good-looking fellow and goes to live with him without first visiting a clergyman or a justice of peace. Later, she discovers the boy friend is a ne'er-do-well. "I'll kill myself," she says. But she doesn't, though the fellow conveniently hands her his revolver. Then he leaves her and she takes a shot at him through the closed door. But she misses.

And the Years Go By

Some years after—by the movie calendar—our heroine finds herself in love with another fellow, a good man this time, and consents to be his wife. And somewhere along here both her new sweetheart and herself find themselves called to serve as jurors in a murder trial. And who do you suppose is the murdered man? None other than the former boy friend, who, it turns out, traveled under different names and had affairs with different women. Someone, you see, proved a better shot than Miss Mackaill.

Well, another girl, whom he didn't do right by—as the old melodramas have it—is accused of killing him. But whether she really did or not is a mystery. There are other mysteries about this film also—chief of which is why it reached the screen at all?

We sympathize with Miss Mackaill. Her charms and talents are wasted in this rather stupid and inconsistent movie story. There are times when the plot appears to run in circles. Perhaps the director mislaid his megaphone.

Another person we sympathize with is a policeman in the courtroom sequences. He leans against a door half asleep—bored beyond words. And we know just how he feels.

Capers by Mr. Mills

"Pirate Capers" is the stage show. Jay Mills appears in a naval uniform that makes him look pretty trick. His specialty is a dance that he calls the Black Maria. The stage band goes through "Moanin' Low" in a novelty manner. The dancing Rockets, with a pirate flare to their costumes, step in routine style. There are a number of featured entertainers who offer comedy and dancing.

Two of the best bets on the bill are Milton Slosser's organlogue and one of those film-cartoon comedies, depicting Mickey the Mouse, as a pianist. In connection with his presentation, Mr. Slosser introduces a Pittsburgh policeman who sings "The Song of the Nile." As for the organlogue proper, it includes a parody on that You-want-lovin'-and-I-want-love song, which goes something like this:

Ha Ha Ha Ha Ha Ha Ha
Ha Ha Ha Ha Ha Ha Ha
You want Ha Ha
And I want Ha.

Millvale Teacher Takes City Job

Miss Jane Johnston, of California, Pa., for three years a teacher in Millvale High School, has resigned to accept a position in the Pittsburgh schools.

GUILD, STOCK IN STAGE BILLS

The Theater Guild will present in the Nixon this evening Bernard Shaw's comedy of morality and manners, "Pygmalion," as the fourth production of its second Pittsburgh subscription season.

This evening in the Shubert Pitt the George Sharp Players will be seen in George Seibel's drama, "The Leper," which had its first presentation in that theater several years ago. Harriet Hammond will play the leading feminine role.

The Shubert-Alvin is dark this week. Next week, in that theater, the Professional Players will present a new play by Norman MacOwan, entitled "The Infinite Shoeblack," starring Helen Menken, and featuring Leslie Banks, English actor, who appeared in the London presentation of this play. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

Monday evening, December 9, Theater Guild will present Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara" at the Nixon Theater. The cast, headed by Frieda Inescort and Dudley Digges, includes Elliot Cabot, Percy Waram, Jane Wheatley, Phyllis Connard and others.

VOTE ON YOUNG PLAN LAUDED

PARIS, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The French press was virtually unanimous in hailing with satisfaction the German Reichstag's vote against the national referendum on the Young plan, describing it as "a crushing defeat for the nationalists."

"The collapse of Hugenberg's campaign against the Young plan," was another description of the ballot.

Temps says: "We may now consider the plebiscite against the Young plan as definitely doomed."

Le Soir remarked: "Hugenberg should withdraw."

The general impression in Paris is that a good majority is certain for ratification of the Young plan.

Flights Over Towns By Students Barred

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., Dec. 2.—(INS.)—A set of stricter rules and regulations for student pilots were issued here by Col. Norman J. Boots, general manager of the field.

The new rules which prohibit flying over towns came as a result of the plane crash at Westbury, recently, when a plane fell on two houses and set them afire.

Robeson to Sing Here Tuesday Night

Paul Robeson, Negro tenor, will be the principal artist at a concert to be given Tuesday evening in Carnegie Music Hall, under the management of May Beegle. Lawrence Brown will be the piano accompanist.

Robeson, on two occasions last month, appeared in recitals in Carnegie Hall, New York, that were sell-outs, occasioned no doubt by his great success in London in "Show Boat," which was followed concert engagements in various European cities.

This singer is a native of Princeton, N. J., son of a clergyman. Ability in high school gained for him a scholarship in Rutgers College, where he won the "letter" in five sports, including football. Gaining distinction as a college debater, he followed advice to become a lawyer, graduating in the two-year law course in Columbia.

Meanwhile, it was discovered he had a "voice" and law was discarded for art. From a Columbia thespian he went into "The Emperor Jones." Later he played in "All God's Chillun," "Porgy" and "Black Boy." Then "Show Boat" in London and the concert stage.

Less constipation—

Less COLDS!

That's logical, isn't it?

CONSTIPATION doesn't cause colds—but constipation makes it easier for you to catch colds.

Allowing intestinal poisons to accumulate is practically saying, "Welcome, Cold. Make yourself at home!"

That's why doctors usually prescribe a laxative as the first step in fighting a cold. That's why you should take a laxative when you feel a cold coming on! And while you are at it, why not have a good time taking it? Ex-Lax is the delicious chocolated laxative—and its laxative ingredient has the approval of high medical authorities.

Ex-Lax doesn't weaken, doesn't upset, doesn't annoy. It's gentle—yet effective. Your druggist has Ex-Lax in 25c and 50c sizes—and in a 10c trial size, too!

The first step in treating a cold—

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by both medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

MUSIC

Pittsburgh Symphony Society and Florence Austral Syria Mosque

J. Fred Lissfelt.

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society gave the most ambitious program of its career before the usual full house in Syria Mosque last evening. Eugene Goossens took over the baton from Elias Breeskin the last days, and led our men through some of the best and some of the worst music they have made for us.

The program was too long. The omission of either of the symphonic poems would have helped matters, and still there would have been not one moment of relaxed listening from beginning to end.

Smetana's overture to "The Bartered Bride" is one of the most joyous works from modern opera. Here the orchestra showed its mettle to perfection and its improvement in the string choir as well. In Respighi's "Fountains of Rome" as well, Goossens played to the limit on the orchestra's possibilities and with most satisfactory results. But the "Eroica" was a bit too much. And though our visiting conductor worked more strenuously than ever before—the players too—it was the dreariest Beethoven in the history of Syria Mosque. Liszt's tone poem was a recovery.

Florence Austral, dramatic soprano, was the soloist, offering two very important operatic scenes. She possesses a mighty voice; the lower range is full of character, and her high notes, with a clear clarion-like quality, soar beautifully above the full orchestra. In the prayer of the "Freischuetz" aria she showed unexpected lyric style in well planned contrast to the interrupting recitatives, but her powers found their best expression in the "Immolation Scene," in which she restrained her urge to act, and with utmost dignity gave a brilliant reading to this most trying scene of the "Nibelungen Ring." In both accompaniments the orchestra played unusually well. Miss Austral further showed her good taste by keeping in the spirit of her music by singing as encores the "Walkyrie Cry" and a song of praise.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

SCHOOL R.O.T.C. PROMOTED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Organization of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps Association of the United States, to promote and foster the R. O. T. C. in educational institutions, was announced here with the selection of Mat. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, as president.

Fries said that reserve officers of the future must come almost entirely from the R. O. T. C. units in colleges and high schools, and, "as there are many organizations having for their purpose the elimination of military training in our schools, it has become necessary that the patriotic citizens of the land organize themselves to assist in the encouragement, and defense, if need be, of the R. O. T. C. in our high schools and colleges."

Others officers of the organization were: Col. Noble B. Judah, Chicago; Col. Paul V. McNutt, Bloomington, Ind., and Col. Perry W. Weidner, Los Angeles, vice presidents; Capt. George F. Unmacht, Washington, treasurer; Col. Edward A. Harriman, Washington, general counsel, and Lieut. Col. Orvel Johnson, Washington, executive secretary.

Bryce Stops Financing Factory But Holds Guy to Contract

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Patricia Dawn, young and beautiful, is in love with Guy Elliott, handsome aviator. Guy is perfecting a plane which old William Bryce is to manufacture. Pat meets Bryce's widowed daughter-in-law and wonders if Guy is intrigued by Barbara's beauty. Bryce sends Tom Burns, a workman, to jail for attempted robbery. Pat has gay times with Lee Templeton, young college student. Pat's father is stricken with pneumonia and dies. The family considers giving up the big house because of the heavy expenses. Guy, hoping to help the Dawns, tries to urge Bryce to manufacture his plane. He learns the old man has lost a fortune. Mrs. Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest. Guy, fearing Bryce may use the money to cover his own losses, tries to recover it. Bryce reluctantly surrenders the bonds, swearing vengeance on Guy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXII.

FOR two days Guy worked in a state of nervous apprehension. What would Bryce do? Some humiliation, some bitter, punishing move would certainly be the outcome of the quarrel.

Saturday it came.

Since the night Tom Burns broke into the safe Bryce had adopted the check system of payment. He signed the pay checks the first thing each Saturday morning.

But now at 11 o'clock the foreman of the plant called Guy on the phone. "The payroll hasn't come over."

At Guy's inquiry the bookkeeper replied only: "The checks are waiting to be signed. Mr. Bryce hasn't come in yet. He should be here any moment."

Half an hour later the bookkeeper said this: "I called Mr. Bryce on the phone. He's in his downtown office and is not able to come out. He told me to get the payroll money from you."

"No," said Guy slowly, "you misunderstand. I'll get in touch with Mr. Bryce at once."

In a furious quiet Guy stood at his table. Useless to phone Bryce. He would give a mocking laugh and hang up.

Yet his position was untenable. It was ridiculous. He was compelled to meet the wages of his workmen. The Labor Commission would force him. He couldn't take out a personal revenge in this manner.

"Have your men wait," Guy told the foreman. "Bryce has been delayed. I'm going out to get the payroll now."

Bryce was not surprised when Guy, brushing past the stenographer, came flinging to the inner office. He turned a paper-cutter end to end, and after a moment, glanced with cool, narrowed eyes into Guy's face. "Good morning," he said with a crisp nod.

"The men are waiting for their pay-checks."

"So I've heard."

"You can't take out your hostility to me on your wage earners."

"Why should I pay your workmen, Mr. Elliott?"

"For the same reason you've been paying them for the past three years. I've brought the checks for you to sign. The men will be kept an hour overtime as it is."

Bryce took the checks and with a rap of his knuckles set them on the far edge of the desk: "I'm not signing the pay-checks of your laborers. Get it straight, Mr. Elliott! I'm done financing YOU. I'm not putting up another cent to keep your company operating."

"The company is mine in name only. The property is yours."

"And remains mine. But you keep the men working on your plane at your own expense. Understand?"

"You have a contract with me."

"Read the contract!"

Said Guy through his shut teeth: "You can't pull any damned crooked stuff like this! I'm telling the men to call Monday for their wages. See that the wages are there!"

On his return to the plant, Guy found the foreman waiting outside the workroom: "What's the matter? Are you and Bryce going to split? One of you has got to meet the payroll. Pretty dangerous to pull a stunt like this."

Through some mysterious channels the rumor of the quarrel had filtered all over the yard. The men loitered in groups, grumbling and truculent.

"Tell them to come Monday," said Guy evasively. "Their money will be here."

"I hope that's not a stall. These are mean fellows to cheat—"

Bryce would pay. He'd have to. Yet that ominous, threatening defi he had hurled: "Read your contract, Elliott!" Was there some slick loophole through which he could escape, leaving Guy responsible?

With still lightning clarity Guy recalled the incidents leading to his partnership with Bryce.

Bryce had come to him with this glittering offer. Guy should take charge of the airplane factory which was already a going concern. He should perfect his design of the plane. Bryce would put it on the market. He, of course, would finance the venture. In return for this he would have exclusive right to sell Guy's plane.

To simplify matters two companies were formed; one to manufacture the plane, one to sell it. Guy was given control of the manufacturing unit, with 51 shares of its stock. He must pay back the original capital only when the manufacturing plant had acquired a surplus.

It appeared, even recalling it now, businesslike and fair.

"He'll get over his peeve," Guy decided. And if he didn't, a break between them might be a good thing. In Bryce's present financial slump, years could pass before they were turning out ships in paying quantity. Other concerns were far outstripping them.

One of these, the Botfield Aircraft Company, would welcome Guy to their staff. Their design engineer, Carl Brunner, had attended Brooks and Kelly Schools at the same time as Guy. He knew of Guy's patents. Recently he wrote asking if Guy were free. Botfield wanted Guy's design. He offered a salary of $500 a month and royalties.

Two—especially when one was slender and most thrillingly sweet—could live on this.

Then let Bryce rant. Let him break his contract! Guy pulled his soft hat on at a jaunty angle and went out happily enough to meet Pat. They sat in a new Bryce-Swallow, which Guy had equipped with a radio. He had already taught Pat how to send an "SOS." With a little card showing the symbols, he now had her tap off her name and his.

"And when we cross the dark and stormy seas, love, I'll be your little radio-Liz." Guy, are you awfully sure it's I you want to take? And not the beauteous Barbara?

He looked with dark, wooing tenderness on her glowing face. The color, the young, fiery sweetness filled his heart with longing. She was so much more vivid than Barbara Bryce. She was dewy like a soft new flower.

"Why do you laugh, Guy? Are you sure you want me?

He yawned and stretched out his arms, regarding her with flushed, happy yearning. "Yes, you! Too much sometimes—you sweet!"

"But I'm not nearly as beautiful as she is."

"Ten times more tempting, which is more important."

Pat turned brightly red: "I fear you'll be a wicked husband."

"The thing that every woman wants. I'll try not to disappoint you, dear!"

They forgot William Bryce and his cold adult obsessions. They flew down the path of the setting sun; down a lane all riotous with gold and scarlet flowers. He let the little plane ride as it would. He swept an arm about Pat and shouted: "I'm marrying you on Monday!"

Sunday Guy sent a telegram to Carl Brunner. He asked if the offer of the Botfield Company was still open. It never occurred to him that the sending of this message could assume sinister import.

Monday there was a notice on the bulletin board outside the factory:

"The Bryce-Elliott Corporation will no longer be responsible for wages, materials or other obligations contracted for by the Bryce-Elliott Company."

The men stood in a stormy group. They read the notice and made ugly threats. Then the bookkeeper appeared. He gave the men their paychecks. But in each envelope was a printed slip with the same curt information.

"Is the plant closed?" the foreman asked.

Guy answered: "Tell the men to work today. I'll see what can be done."

He felt his blood flame as he crossed the threshold of Bryce's office. The lawyer who had drawn up the contract three years ago was there.

"Have a chair, Mr. Elliott," said Bryce regarding Guy with exasperating quiet.

Guy remained standing. "Is the plant shut down?" he fired abruptly.

"Not that I know of."

"It can't run without money!"

"That's your concern. You're the president of the manufacturing unit. My business is to sell your product. I remind you—I'm under no obligation to finance YOU!"

"Suit yourself. I may take it. I suppose that you're throwing up your contract."

"You may take nothing of the kind. The contract remains. Nowhere in it does it specify that I'm to be your bank. I'm now giving up the honor."

"You can't withdraw your backing and yet hold me to the contract."

"I can and do!"

"Well, by God, try it!"

"Don't get excited, Mr. Elliott. There's nothing in your contract stipulating that Mr. Bryce must supply funds for the operation of your plant."

"But the whole spirit and essence of the agreement stipulated that he would finance the venture until my plane was on the market. He's not done this. All right, if he wants to quit, I'm satisfied."

"Mr. Bryce is NOT quitting."

"What the hell is he doing?"

"Simply giving no more money to the company over which you have control."

"Then I'm telling you the contract between us is abrogated. I'm going out and get a job and I'm taking my patents with me!"

Said Bryce softly, through shut teeth: "You can manufacture your plane, Mr. Elliott. But neither you nor any other company can SELL it. I hold this exclusive right. Violate it and you can answer to the court.

He saw that he was trapped; viciously trapped. He went up to Bryce and swore in his face: "If this is a game to get even, you can't win! Make one move to jam me to the wall, Bryce, and you'll sweat blood for it. Don't try!"

He went to Harold Heming, a lawyer and a friend. Heming studied the contract. "You own the patents, Guy. But they're no good to you. You can't SELL the plane. Of course, no company will take the design with a cloud on the rights. And your services belong exclusively to the Bryce-Elliott Corporation.

"For the love of Mike, Hal, can Bryce keep me from earning my living while refusing to pay for my service?"

"Not indefinitely, of course. But he can make it damn unpleasant. He can make your services too costly for another aviation company to consider."

Feeling very cold and shaken Guy called up his sister. There was an answer from Carl Brunner:

"Our offer holds good. Botfied greatly interested. Wire immediately if you are free and have exclusive rights to your patents."

He couldn't take this job! No chance at this $500 a month . . . In a burning rage he returned to the plant. He found ominous welcome.

Late Stayups Not So Good Prospective Husbands, Fay King Observes

THE YOUNGEST, PRETTIEST GIRL IS NOT SO ATTRACTIVE WHEN SHE IS TIRED
THREE O'CLOCK IS LATE ENOUGH
IT'S TOO LATE!
A CERTAIN FAMOUS BEAUTY OF OLD ALWAYS ARRIVED LATE, FRESH AND VIVACIOUS WHEN HER RIVALS WERE WILTED, AND LEFT SOON AFTER FAY KING

By FAY KING

THE Mothers of debutante daughters have got together and have agreed to end their social affairs earlier.

The eligible young society man who also wishes to succeed in business cannot afford to stay up so late. Result is the daughters meet less desirable young men.

This wise conclusion might well include the prospects of girls in other circles.

The young man who can stay out all hours is not apt to succeed very well in his work. A man who is not interested in his business career will not make a good husband.

After midnight parties becomes more or less wild. The opinion and admiration of a young man who is more or less "popeyed" at that hour is not flattering or important.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Edith Accepts the Job of "Errand Girl" and Lillian Exults

FROM behind Edith Fairfax's back, as she avowed her delight in planning decorations, Lillian lifted her eyebrows at me and smiled sardonically.

"Leave this to me," she signalled silently, and I was glad enough to obey her.

"I think Madge has her color scheme and effects already selected," she said. "At least she withdrew into the silence long enough to evolve a dozen banquets. But as I said, she can't get out, and we know that you know the shops of this city as few do, so—we drafted you."

For a fleeting instant something ugly looked out from Edith Fairfax's beautiful eyes. Then she masked it with apparent good nature.

"I'm the best little errand girl in the city," she said, and no one could have detected the mockery which I was sure lay beneath the words. "Tell me your great ideas, Madge, and I'll make a list of what you want."

Subtly she had managed to make me feel that my plans for the dinner were flat and unattractive, and I had to force myself to apparent nonchalance as I answered her.

"The things we have to work with are rather hopeless," I said, indicating the massive and ugly table at the end of the room. "But I have a damask cloth which will hide it completely—I couldn't use a lace one, of course, over that wood."

"I don't know," Edith said, looking critically at the table.

Her tone damned my choice of damask, and she used the same belittling tactics as I told her of my choice of china, silver and glass for the dinner.

"Is the Olina Princess the gorgeous dark creature I caught a glimpse of in your apartment?" she asked Lillian.

"Yes. You'll meet her after a little. She wasn't gowned correctly, she thought, so she hurried into her room when you came."

"There's only one color scheme for her," Edith said decidedly. "Deep red roses, and candles and favors all the color of rubies."

"Pears to me, you're getting your dates mixed, Ede," Lillian drawled. "This isn't a Christmas dinner, you know."

"But you're right about it's being the only color for the princess," I said. "But I am not building my scheme around her at all. Selfishly I am going to make Mary the queen of the feast. Let me show you the gown she's going to wear."

I went to my own room and came back with Mary's honey-colored gown flecked with orange.

"Exquisite!" Edith murmured, with half-shut eyes. "I can just see the blossoms that ought—"

I interrupted her ruthlessly.

"Yes, can't you?" I asked innocently. "Those butterfly creamy yellow buds running into coppery gold at the base combined with that new shade of orange sweet peas like those gorgeous long ones at the flower show, with just enough feathery green for contrast. I have a low bit of spreading amber glass just made for it. Then with amber glasses for water and fruit punch—fortunately I have a set of just the right tint, and favors and candles which will blend in with them—"

"You'll have a marvelous dinner table," Lillian exclaimed, and Edith acquiesced perfunctorily.

"It ought to be very fetching," she said, "if we can get the candles. They're awfully hard to get hold of. . ."

"That's why Dicky shunted the job of getting 'em to your capable hands," Lillian said slyly. "I wanted to turn him into an errand boy, but he said you knew more shops than a jewelry novelty salesman."

"Yes, I do know a lot of shops," she said gamely, "and I'll do the best I can for you, Madge. Tell me now, what and how many and how much you want to pay for them."

She jotted down the commissions I gave her, and then we went back into Lillian's suite where she met the Princess Olina and renewed acquaintanceship with Mary. When she finally left us Dicky escorted her to the elevator, and I saw Mary glaring after them as if the perfunctory act was a distinct offense to me and all rules of decorum, and I was petty enough to be comforted by her championship.

"Well! We tamed her," Lillian whispered jubilantly at her first opportunity.

"You mean, you did," I retorted, and then we had time for no more confidences, for Harry, Noel and Prince Georges came from the "tiger trap."

"If it were made to order, it couldn't be better," Mr. Underwood said. "On one side it's flanked by the manager's own suite, so that we only have one room to guard on that balcony, the one on the left of ours. We've rented that room, but the manager is under instructions to rent it to anybody whom I check as suspicious. I'll have to spend most of my waking time in the manager's office back of the desk. They've arranged a peep hole for me, and I can go down the service elevator and through the library without being seen from the lobby. It's perfect."

The telephone rang, and he answered it, saying after an instant—

"All right. I'll be right down." As he hung up the receiver, he turned to us.

"They think they have a nibble at the bait," he said.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Spontaneous Phrase Correct

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am an orphan and I have lived all my life with my grandparents. I have two older married sisters, and I am about to announce my engagement to a boy whom I have known for about two years.

Will you kindly advise me as to the proper way of announcing the engagement, where to receive the ring, and what to say (without being too elaborate)? Thank you.

READER.

I URGE you to announce your engagement in the simplest possible way, for in doing this you will show the best taste. Although the announcement of a wedding may be made, and usually is made, by formally engraved cards, this form is not in good taste when we announce an engagement.

When you receive your ring, there is no need to receive it with anyone present except you and your fiance. It is a sacred moment, most important to only two persons, and usually they wish to be alone when the ring is given. You are right, indeed, about not saying anything "elaborate." Say the natural thing that springs impulsively to your mind on this holy occasion. Say what your spirit tells you to say; don't let anyone make a suggestion of phrases for this personal event, dear friend.

When you receive the ring, and wish to tell your friends the happy news, tell the ones who live near, or write them a note, and write notes to other dear friends whom you wish to tell before the news is made public.

After this, if you wish, your grandparents may make a formal announcement in the newspapers—this is always in good taste. And then the announcement is "all made."

Formal Invitations

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it proper for a girl who met a man for the first time, to ask him to a Sorority dance of hers?

2. How should she ask him?

3. Is he supposed to offer to pay for the tickets? If he does, is she to accept?

4. It is a formal affair Therefore, should she write him a note telling him so, or should she tell it to him in person?

THIS seems a bit "previous" but, if at the first meeting, she saw him for some time and they became very well acquainted, it would be all right, I think.

2. The very best way of inviting him is to write him a note of invitation. And especially is this so, in this case. Anybody being invited in this way should be given the opportunity of declining gracefully.

3. No, the girl should get the tickets and should pay for them. She is the hostess, and she should therefore take care of all the details of her hospitality. She should, in her letter, make it clear that she either has the tickets or is going to get them, and then there will be no occasion for him to suggest that he get the tickets.

4. If you say that it is a sorority dance, he will, if he is accustomed to "going about," know that it is a formal affair. I think that the girl would be a bit socially presumptuous if she felt that she must tell him. But, if he asks her, then she can make it clear.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Silver-Plated Lining

THERE is a brighter side to all things, and the silver lining to the recent Wall Street cloud-burst is the sweet thought that, NOW, we can stop struggling to "keep up with the Jones's!" Oh, joy!

* * *

It is quite the smart thing to be "broke"; and you can wear gasolined gloves and moth-eaten furs, and still leave the impression that you "lost millions in the Market."

HELEN ROWLAND

Most of us will be terribly busy for the next few years, struggling to bring our running expenses down to a WALK. And those who still have plenty of money will be either ashamed to admit it, or too delicate to display it in the presence of those who have lost theirs.

* * *

Even the solvents will talk "frugality," and be afraid to be seen dashing around in new imported cars and ermine evening coats, for fear that all their bankrupt friends will try to borrow money from them.

It's no disgrace to be poor when you're poor en masse. And the whole Country will probably go "Greenwich Village," where it's the fashion to be penniless and you brag about how cheaply you can eat and how little you can live on.

* * *

To be as dowdy as an English Duchess will be positively swank; and darned stockings will be a mark of social distinction. All the Scotch jokes will come TRUE!

* * *

The only danger is that there will now be as many "ex-millionaires" as there once were Kentucky Colonels and Russian Archdukes running loose around the Country.

* * *

Everybody, who once had a couple of shares of Blue-Sky Preferred worth two dollars at par, will now think of himself bitterly as "a Big ex-Wall Street Plunger."

* * *

Speaking seriously, it's going to be a mighty healthy thing for this Land of the Free Spender, to stop worshipping the Golden Calf and go back to honest WORK.

Lots of tired men and women will be glad to stop hitting the high spots and give up the painful struggle to keep up with the Jones's; to get out of their evening clothes, stay away from parties and read some of the unopened books in their own libraries—to stop showing off and begin really LIVING, again!

* * *

To some, this may seem like only a silver-PLATED lining—but it may turn out to be platinum set with diamonds for lots of husbands who have been yearning to spend a few quiet evenings at home—and for lots of wives who have been wishing their husbands would STAY at home. No money—no whoopee!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, December 3

A CONFLICTING and difficult state of affairs is prognosticated from this day's lunar and solar aspects. Although there will be much activity and initiative with sudden moves and changes of plans yet the tenacious Saturn seems to frustrate and postpone.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an unusual year with much enterprise and sudden visitations of promising character yet tenacious obstables arise to thwart and defer.

A child born on this day may be enterprising and progressive but will be called upon to surmount many difficulties.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Big Percentage of Ills Can Be Avoided

HEALTH is natural. Disease is unnatural. Some twenty-three centuries ago, Hippocrates said, "Nature is the cure of disease." He pointed out the fact that diet is better than drugs, and prevention better than cure.

DR. COPELAND

Today the prevention of disease is one of the most vital of all issues. It is time we more keenly realized the importance of right living and the art of keeping well.

Civilization has brought with it many, many ills. These are ills which nature never intended should exist.

Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane, famous consulting surgeon at Guy's Hospital, London, has said: "Approximately 90 per cent of our physical defects, disorders and diseases would appear to be preventible . . . and are due in the main to faulty nutrition, lack of fresh air and exercise, stagnation of decomposing intestinal contents, and other simple matters which can easily be corrected."

Primitive races, though living unhygienically and unscientifically, usually have excellent teeth, strong and straight bones, roomy jaws, throat and noses. They are free from dental decay, catarrh, tonsilitis, indigestion and so many ills which affect mankind today.

But primitive man lives near to Nature. He exercises frequently, lives in the fresh air and sunshine and eats of Nature's foods.

Most important of all things is that people should live more natural lives. They should get back to eating the more hardy foods. They should seek to maintain the normal condition of body and mind. Most of our diseases are caused by faulty living. The only way to have good health is by taking the right diet, getting the proper amount of rest and sleep, and absorbing plenty of sunshine and fresh air.

The ancients recognized the value of sunlight. Everybody knows about their worship of the sun-god. We should pay more attention to sunshine. Ultra-violet rays are better understood now and we appreciate that they are essential to the physical welfare of the race.

Tuberculosis is a disease of faulty living. Innumerable drugs and serums have been used in fighting it. But it is cured, not by these methods, but by changing the method of living. The remedy lies in the right kind of food, sunlight and fresh air, with proper exercise and rest.

The body has great reserve power to counteract the work of germs, which are present everywhere. Here Nature has provided for us. We should do everything to build up the body tissues to a healthy state, so that we shall be in condition to withstand the wily bacteria.

A noted physician has said, "For the body to keep healthy it is, of course, necessary that all the organs and tissues should be in a fairly normal condition. There are various vital properties which make the healthy organism. One of these is the strong natural immunity of the body to infection." This comes from right living.

STUDENTS AID HARVARD RAIDS

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Bootleggers have become a pest at Harvard in the opinion of Maj. Henry E. Goodnough, assistant administrator of prohibition enforcement for New England.

After raids by federal agents and Boston police over the week-end during which five arrests were made, Maj. Goodnough said that tips for the arrest of two men "might have come" from Harvard students. He denied that students were being used as paid informers and added that any information from undergraduates had come voluntarily.

"To my way of thinking," he said, "the students are co-operating in a real honest desire to rid their dormitories of the bootlegger pest."

Six students are known to have visited Maj. Goodnough last Friday. The next day two men were arrested near the college yard after they had received $135 in marked money given them by two young men in exchange for a case of whisky. The bootleggers pleaded with the officers to release the young men, saying they were innocent.

The young men were released but later they and four others met the federal agents again. Clad in fur coats and spats, they accompanied the raiders and visited nearly a dozen places here, during which three more arrests were made and evidence was collected.

The telephone number given by one of the men arrested, Morris Willis, of Roxbury, appeared in mysterious advertisements in the Lampoon and the Crimson, undergraduate publications, last month.

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Dec. 2.—Frank Holein, 42, shot his wife, Catherine Holein, 37, four times and then fired a bullet through his head yesterday afternoon at their home. Holein died almost instantly. PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Buffet Lunch Planned by Mrs. Rowe

AS varied and brilliant as the decorations on the luckiest child's Christmas tree will be the social events of December. Of course parties for the debutantes will predominate, but there'll be amateur theatricals, entertainments for the school set, and events for the younger married folks.

PARTICULARLY attractive will be the buffet luncheon Mrs. Wallace Hastie Rowe, of Monwood avenue, will give in her home on Wednesday, December 18. And the guest of honor will be her young daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wallace Hastie Rowe, Jr., who was Anne Louise Marshall, daughter of the Lee Holmes Marshalls, before her marriage.

DOWN in Baltimore tonight one of Pittsburgh's daughters will make her bow. Mary Thoburn Maccoun, young daughter of the Andrew Elliott Maccouns, of North Braddock and Baltimore. She is one of the 61 debs being presented to Baltimore society at the first Monday German of the Bachelors' Cotillion at the Lyric.

When they appear in the cotillion figures most of the buds according to the time-honored custom, will wear white, with a few preferring the pastel shades of flesh, pale green or egg-shell. Their bouquets or shoulder corsages, though will be gay enough, representing every flower-color known.

Mary will wear egg-shell net and will carry orchids and gardenias. Her mother will chaperone her, and Charles Carroll, Sr., and Irwin Dunn will escort her.

Mary's cousin, Martha Stockton, who's known here, will wear white crepe satin, and carry old-fashioned bouquet. She'll be chaperoned by her mother, Mrs. Richard Stockton, III, of Princeton, and be escorted by John Hanson Crocker.

Tomorrow Elizabeth Cushing Knapp, of the Oriole City, will give a tea for Mary and Martha.

TO return home, I know the aids for the tea that Mrs. Alexander Stuart Hunter and her daughter, Miss Laetitia Hunter, will give tomorrow afternoon in their Fifth avenue home. And the guests will meet Mrs. Hunter's two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Alexander Hays Hunter, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Joseph Fisher Hunter, of Rye, N. Y.

Aids will be Miss Katherine May Edwards, Mrs. Thomas Reed Hartley, Mrs. Sarah Marshall Childs, Mrs. Lewis A. Park, Mrs. Clarence Stanley, Mrs. J. L. Dawson Painter, Mrs. Samuel A. Hartwell, Jr., Mrs. Thomas L. Orr, Mrs. Rees T. Scully, Mrs. T. Howe Nimick and Mrs. William Forman Bickel.

I WANT to mention another event planned to honor Katherine Harkness Edwards, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, Jr., of Fifth avenue. The William E. McKelveys, of Westminster place, will give a small dinner in their home on December 12, preceding the dance Katherine's brother-in-law and sister, the John McKelvy Lazears, will give in the Pittsburgh Club for her.

* * *

DID you know that a new tea dance has been added to the long list of December events? The Franklin Cadwallader Irishes, of Devon road, will give a tea-dance Friday afternoon, December 27, in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, to present their daughter, Lydia Irish, to the Pittsburgh social world.

ATELIER DESIGN HATS TO CONFORM TO THE SILHOUETTE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—We are getting it in the neck. We refer, of course, to the present crop of hats that reveal the forehead but conceal the nape. Some of these hats are easier to look at than to wear, and we again emphasize the warning that your hat should be becoming as well as smart. The soft side drapes that are favored by so many smart milliners lend the necessary softness and flattering note to the face, and are preferable to the little tight fitting cap that your milliner may qualify with the sometimes misleading adjective, "jaunty," or the much more misleading one, "youthful." A so-called youthful hat does not often have the happy faculty of conferring a youthful look to the face that is no longer of a girlish freshness and rounded contour. The baby-bonnet type of hat that has had some modicum of success here is most decidedly not the hat for a matron however successfully she simulates the flush and flash of youth.

THE two hats which we have sketched for you are indicative of the sort that is finding much favor just now. The first is from Marcelle Roze, who has made this attractive model in black felt. It turns back from the forehead and ends in a long curving line at each side of the face. A narrow belt of felt caught with a steel buckle crosses the ear at the back. The other hat is from Suzanne Talbot, and is of black beaver felt. It has an attractive supple brim turned off from the face, and widening as it goes toward the back, forming a soft draped effect at the nape of the neck. A new and flattering note is to be had in the clear crystal flower pin that is deftly placed at the left side close to the cheek.

ANOTHER lesson in the subtle art of simplicity in clothes is to be found in the delightful little afternoon frock here depicted. It is from the establishment of Worth and has been ordered by the very smart Comtess Fal de St. Phalle and also by the famous Italian actress, Francesca Bertini, who is in private life the Baroness Cartier.

THE frock is of black crepe satin, a very popular medium for afternoon dresses. Vertical set in godets, flaring at the skirt edge alternate the dull and the satin sides of the crepe. The bow on the front of the bodice is of the satin, while the sleeves are of the dull weave. This is an ideal model for the woman whose wardrobe is a limited one, for a dress of this type will prove of wonderful worth to its wearer. Its claim to distinction is to be found in its simplicity and freedom from superfluous detail. Although a dress of intricate cut and lavish trimming is often the choice of women who have to make a dress do only a season's duty, it is not for the woman whose clothes must carry over to the next season.

Lieut.-Col. Sidney A. Hagerling and his family are respected citizens of Carrick, so when a half-dozen policemen descended upon the Hagerling home in Brownsville road the other day the neighbors were astounded. When those same police departed a few minutes later bearing cumbersome spoils the astonishment grew to whisperings.

The police were actually taking the stove from the Hagerling kitchen! They loaded it into the patrol wagon and drove triumphantly to the police station.

Col. Hagerling was not arrested. He was thanked, in fact. He had just bought a new range for the kitchen, and when he heard that the Carrick police needed something on which to heat coffee during these cold winter days he offered the old one.

CIRCLE PLAN DISCUSSED BY P.R.R.

Vice President E. T. Whiter Says Railroad Considers Cost Is Stumbling Block

The Pennsylvania Railroad's reasons for not favoring the city's latest plan for the solution of the traffic problem in the Pennsylvania Station district by the construction of a traffic circle with depressed through-traffic lanes at Eleventh street and Penn avenue are contained in a statement issued today by Vice President E. T. Whiter, of the railroad company.

The railroad is not opposed to the city's plan, Mr. Whiter explains, but believes that the company should not be expected to pay the difference between the cost of carrying out the plan it has proposed for handling the problem and the more ambitious proposal now being urged by city engineers.

RECITES HISTORY

Mr. Whiter's statement:

For the purpose of clarifying current discussion of the proposed widening of Penn avenue from Eleventh street eastwardly and construction of a new, modern passenger station and other passenger facilities by the Pennsylvania Railroad in Pittsburgh, the following history of negotiations is given by the Pennsylvania.

First, let it be said that the Pennsylvania is willing to accept the city's plan for the intersection at Penn avenue and Grant street extended to Penn avenue, but objects to bearing a portion of the excess cost of that plan over the cost of the plan submitted by the railroad for reasons that are covered in the following statement.

After completing its negotiations with the city in 1925 for a contract ordinance permitting the extension of its facilities from Liberty avenue to Spring way, and from Eleventh street to Seventeenth street, the company's officers were approached informally by the City Planning Commission with a plan to widen Penn avenue. This plan provided for a plain intersection at Penn avenue and Eleventh street.

MILLIONS INVOLVED

The company advised the Planning Commission that it was not interested in the idea for the reason that the company had already practically completed its plans for its improvements extending to Spring way and because the new scheme would require the purchase of additional land at a cost of about $6,600,000.

The scheme was not allowed to drop, however, and in November, 1928, the City Council passed a resolution inviting the railroad to join the city in a project to widen Penn avenue from 60 feet to 120 feet from Eleventh street to a point east thereof to be determined later, with the request that the Penn-

$4,436,760 ASKED FOR STREAMS

Fund Provides for Lock and Dam Construction on Monongahela and Allegheny

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—In his annual report to Congress, submitted today, Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of the Army Board of Engineers, recommends that $1,400,000 be appropriated for new work on the Monongahela and Allegheny River projects during the coming fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1930.

At the same time the Army chief of engineers allocated the sum of $3,036,760 for similar improvements on the Ohio River, making a total of $4,436,760 recommended for expenditure in the improvement of navigation facilities serving the Pittsburgh district.

NEW LOCK PROVIDED

The expenditures proposed in all three projects are in keeping with legislation already approved by Congress in the last omnibus rivers and harbors bill and do not include further modifications contemplated in subsequent reports. Authorization for additional expenditures on facilities in the Pittsburgh district may be included in a new rivers and harbors bill which House leaders are planning to press forward during the present regular session, opening today.

Of the total sum recommended for the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers, $600,000 will be spent in the construction of a new lock and Dam No. 4, designed to make transportation on the Monongahela River more dependable, while $800,000 has been allotted to lock and dam construction on the Allegheny River.

CHANNEL WORK PLANNED

Of the fund recommended for the Ohio, $1,886,760 will go to lock and dam construction and the remaining $1,150,000 to open channel work.

An additional sum of $3,000 was allocated for maintenance work on the open channel of the Allegheny.

Gen. Brown reported that the sum of $2,766,760 remains as unexpended balance on funds previously allocated for lock and dam construction on the Allegheny, together with $903,130 on the Monongahela, and $4,782,376 on the Ohio, making a total of $8,452,266. All of this, he explained, will be expended before the end of the current fiscal year, June 30, 1930.

ROBBERS CRACK THREE SAFES

Three safe robberies were reported to the police to day.

Cracksmen forced their way into the Avenue Pharmacy, 805 Wylie avenue, during the night, pried the door off a small safe in the rear and stole about $150, a gold watch and chain, and a revolver.

Ben Goldstein, manager of the pharmacy, said three Negroes entered the store Saturday night and behaved so suspiciously that he feared a holdup and seized one of the pistols that he had placed around the store in strategic positions. The men left without trying to molest him.

Robbers opened the safe in the office of the Hart Planing Mill Company, 7923 Division street, by knocking off the combination, and escaped with $75, J. A. Meyers, manager, notified police today. Entrance to the place was effected by breaking a side window.

Thieves broke into the Allen Rug Weaving Company, 7838 Kelly street, last night. Hammering the combination lock from a safe they escaped with $11 in cash, having overlooked $75 in a small compartment of the safe.

VOTE MACHINE DELAY ASKED

Delay in ordering the full number of voting machines until the work of redistricting is completed was urged today by the Citizens Voting Machine Campaign Committee.

The recommendation was made in a letter to the county commissioners and signed by Frank J. Harris, chairman.

Citing the reason for delay, the letter said in part:

"We believe this work should not be hurried but be given careful thought, especially taking into consideration the difference in population which the 1930 census may show. It would seem that the work of redistricting can not be satisfactorily concluded in time to have the registration for the 1930 May primaries made according to the new districts.

"Granting this promise to be true we feel that it would be an unbuesinesslike procedure to contract to purchase any great number of machines until your honorable body knows exactly how many election districts there will be under the new arrangements."

It was urged that various manufacturers be compelled to compete and if possible different machines be tried out to determine which design will prove the most satisfactory. A committee of four has been appointed to offer its services to the commissioners and give any information the committee can impart.

WILL DEDICATE ROAD DEC. 14

The Saw Mill Run boulevard celebration committees at a meeting held in Overbrook took steps to further plans for the dedication of the new road.

The date for the fete was officially set for Saturday, December 14. Communities represented were Brentwood, Brightwood, Bethel, Castle Shannon, Baldwin, Eighteenth Ward Board of Trade and Overbrook.

Auto Hits Wire, Drags Lineman From Pole

LATROBE, Pa., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Sam K. Snyder, of Latrobe, veteran lineman for the Bell Telephone Company, is in a serious condition at a hospital here following a 30-foot fall from a pole. Snyder, stringing a wire across a highway, had anchored the wire on one side and was climbing a pole on the other side with the end of the wire looped about his shoulder.

An automobile struck the sagging wire and pulled Snyder from the pole.

TONY, ORPHANS' FRIEND, GONE

Tony Sassano, as everyone around Desertion and Non-Support Court knew, had been leaving his job as tipstaff each afternoon, hurrying home, and had been spending his nights for two months past preparing for Christmas.

For nine years he had furnished the tree and decorated it; he had designed and constructed the garden around it, the church, with its lovely alter and seats and aisles; its snow-covered roof; the Crib, the spangles, and trains—all of the tree had been of his doing.

For nine years, each Christmas time, at least 500 children came to the party. They were the kiddies cared for by the court, children who had been deserted, for the most part, each year. They got candy and had a real holiday time, leaving with toys and baskets.

And the tree was Tony's part of it.

But Tony couldn't wait for Christmas this year. They took him to Calvary Cemetery, McKees Rocks, yesterday. He had become ill last week, was taken to the Mercy Hospital where he died Thanksgiving Day.

There had been no youngsters at home. Just Tony and his wife. This year he had planned newer miniatures, better ones—many of them now half done. He had expected another month to finish them before Miss Grace, secretary of the court, gave the big party.

Prior to serving as tipstaff, he had been a county detective serving under District Attorney William A. Blakely. He had also served as a Justice of the Peace in Stowe Township, he lived at 66 McKinnie avenue, McKees Rocks. He was 49.

This year, J. E. Foley will have the job of preparing the tree.

DORMONT FINES 26 MOTORISTS

Continuing his warfare on violators of Dormont traffic laws, Burgess W. S. Haddock at a hearing fined 26 motorists. Twenty were assessed $1 each for parking their cars on the borough streets all night; two were fined $10 each for driving at an excessive speed and four were penalized $5 each for driving their cars past red traffic signal lights.

MAN KIDNAPED, ROBBED IN CAR

Sheldon Medbury, a New York salesman stopping at the Keystone Athletic Club, reported to police late last night that while walking in the downtown district an automobile drew up to the curb near him and two men forced him into the car.

After driving him through the downtown district for some time the car headed out Liberty avenue, and at McCandless avenue the men robbed him of $80 and a watch valued at $48. He was then thrown from the car, which sped away.

David Taxey, of 23 Seneca street, reported to the detective bureau that his home was entered late last night and a woman's coat valued at $300 was stolen.

Baby Smothered By Bed Clothing

Three-day-old Millard J. Robinson, of Library, was found smothered to death by bed clothing early yesterday, according to a morgue report. The clothing apparently had fallen over his face.

Dr. McEwan Silent On Resignation

The Rev. Dr. W. L. McEwan, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, requested by the congregation last week to reconsider his resignation, tendered after 35 years of service, failed to announce his intentions yesterday. Last week he said he would make known his decision at some Sunday service in the near future.

Dr. J. M. Gaston, secretary of the Freedman's Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church, said yesterday that dissolution of relationship between Dr. McEwan and his congregation can be brought about only by action of the Presbytery, which meets December 10.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: Do you concur with Secretary of Labor Davis in that married women should be entitled to two weeks' vacation annually?

MILDRED COX, Northside: "My opinion is that the women should be entitled to even more than two weeks' vacation. It gives them a chance to get away from household drudgery for a time. They say absence makes the heart grow fonder! Then if this is true, don't you think that a vacation intensifies love and affection upon her return."

Mildred Cox

ANNA ROSS, Lawrenceville: "I agree with Secretary Davis in his statement. He knows what he's talking about. Yes, women should have an annual vacation from their married life duties. This is especially true when they have children. Love will be intensified, married life will run along more smoothly. Then I've heard that 'absence makes a fond heart.'"

Anna Ross

MRS. MARY WYNCOOP, Hays Borough, Telephone Operator: "Every woman is entitled to a vacation, whether she is married or not, and more so if she is tied down to home duties. When she gets a chance to get a vacation she returns with a new viewpoint on her problems. Especially is this true when she has a lot of household cares in the form of young children. I think that all, whether married or single, should get a vacation. Mr. Davis has a good idea when he says what he says about women."

Mrs. M. Wyncoop

ALFREDA BAUMAN, East Liberty, Telephone Operator: "Instead of getting one vacation a year the married woman should be able to get several. Household problems irk her when they are indulged in continuously over a long period of time. If she is lucky enough to get away from them for a while, she'll come back ready to perform her work of care and love with greater ardor than before."

Alfreda Bauman

KITTY McCUE, Downtown: Absolutely, women should be entitled to at least two weeks' vacation each year from her household duties the same as every other person in life. Business houses and other organizations give their staff members vacations. With this in mind, there is no reason why a married women should not have a vacation also. Marriage is a business also, and a serious one at that."

Kitty McCue

* * *

EDITH COLES, Oakland, Telephone Operator: "I think that every married woman, regardless of her activities, should be entitled to two weeks vacation the same as everyone else. When she returns from a vacation of this type she is much better fitted to take up her household duties again because she has assumed a broader viewpoint on life. I honor Mr. Davis for making a statement that he thought all married women should get a vacation. He knows what he is talking about."

Taxi Carrying Sick Girl Runs Away; 4 Hurt

None the worse for her exciting ride in a runaway taxicab, which resulted in injury to four persons last night, Amelia Dennet, 18, of 6403 Apple avenue, probably will be operated on today at the West Penn Hospital for appendicitis.

Stricken last night, the girl was being carried into the cab by her father, Camille Dennet; her sister, Catherine, and her aunt, Mrs. Lily Miglioretti. Just as she was placed in the machine the brakes became released and it started down the street.

Paul Roberts, of Congress street, the driver, reached the wheel while the cab was moving at a fast pace and stopped it, but not before he and the girl's relatives were slightly injured.

Bill Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 2.

Instead of talking about Congress, Grundy, sugar, Knute Rockne, Federal Reserve, South Pole and more conferences, did you know that right from Claremore and Rogers County, Oklahoma, the young boys from their high schools won the champion live stock judging at the big international stock show at Chicago last week.

That's from the whole world, these four H clubs to encourage boys to raise live stock beats all the fraternity pins you can collect in a wash tub.

Raise live stock instead of margins, get the farmer some fair prices and these kids will "inspire more confidence" than a band of financiers.

Yours.
WILL.

FRESH AIR SCHOOL AT TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE

PUPILS IN WARM BLANKETS AT STUDY IN PITTSBURGH FRESH AIR SCHOOL TO BE AIDED BY SALES OF CHRISTMAS SEALS

SEAL SALE AIDS ILL CHILDREN

One of the projects supported with money received by the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh in its annual Christmas Seal drive, now under way, is the open-air school maintained at the League Hospital, Bedford and Wandless avenues.

The school is under the direct supervision of the Board of Education.

There, under-privileged children, who are menaced by tuberculosis, are given a chance to ward off the disease, grow well and at the same time keep up their school work.

Children are admitted upon recommendation of their physician or through dispensaries scattered throughout the city. Regular school hours are followed and the boys and girls receive the same tutoring they would receive in either public or parochial institutions.

A noonday meal, bath and milk, along with supplemental medical and dental attention, is given free.

No trace of his whereabouts has been found since his mysterious disappearance from a rooming house at 3515 Forbes street, police said.

Aid of the Missing Persons Bureau and private detectives was enlisted by relatives in Washington, Pa., when they learned he was missing.

Miss Florence E. Fife, of 139 West Ninety-fifth street, New York, whom Cunningham was said to have been engaged to marry, refused to discuss the case in New York yesterday.

Chapin, American Artist, Wins Popular Award

By PENELOPE REDD.

James Chapin, an American artist, was announced last night as the winner of the popular prize of $200 at the twenty-eighth Carnegie Institute International exhibition of paintings. The prize winning canvas was the painting "Emmett," George and Ella Marvin." More than 5,000 votes were cast by visitors to the exhibition, which closes next Sunday.

As the exhibition wanes, individual enthusiasm increases for certain paintings which capture the wary eye. Canvases by two natively different painters, Chapin and Waldo Pierce prove as beguiling to this eye in the seventh week as in the first.

Penelope Redd.

Waldo Pierce roams the world reducing the exotic to boisterous Americanisms. In his haste to set down "Bulls at Pamplona," he vignettes a moment's excited quickness.

In his two interiors he paints himself autobiographically. Pierce has embellished the gusto of his style with arabesque-like patterns that quote graphically the French painter, Matisse. These are as relevant to Pierce's style as costume jewelry would be for a cinnamon bear.

In "Tarpon at Marquesas," he includes not only the usual portrait of himself but also one of Ernest Hemingway, the novelist. Pierce, too, knows not embarassment. He is as completely colloquial as Hemingway. Pierce swipes paintings from life as Hemingway clips conversations from life. Pierce, as a narrator of American life, is unhampered by conventional technic or trite observations.

Chapin is quite another story. He is as Robert Frost is to Ernest Hemingway. Indeed, Chapin has illustrated Frost's "North of Boston" and Frost has purchased one of Chapin's paintings. Chapin alike delights the casual gallery visitor, the informed collector, and various juries of his painter peers if prizes received be a proper criterion.

Chapin's three canvases at the Carnegie International indicate his reflections on America. The America that has all but vanished is rescued pictorially in the Marvins, pioneer-line farmers. The America that is rapidly passing is noted in "The Pretzel Man" lugubrious in the cheerfully noisy melting-pot. The America that may yet recognize beauty in a humble "Ruby Green," an obscure chorus girl of a Negro revue, is prophesied.

James Chapin found more than apple jack in his native New Jersey. He discovered the Marvins. In answer to the frequent question, there are five of them, Emmet and George with their sister Ella, form one generation. George's daughters, Edith and Ethel are of the second generation. Chapin has done individual portraits of them all. He has combined them variously in a painted saga illustrating the cycle of their farm toil as demanded by the seasons.

Chapin's discovery of the Marvin family is of greater import than a quaint series of paintings. It crystallizes the scattered tendency on the part of several younger American painters to go "down home" for subjects. Painters have not only ended the vogue of "art for art's sake" inaugurated by the impressionists. Painters have gone beyond the experiments practiced by the "neo-impressionists" whom we knew as futurists, vorticists, expressionists, dadists, or other aesthetic theorists. In the United States there is a definite trend towards a revival of the "genre" or human interest type of painting.

Chapin and Pierce are forerunners of the movement. Chapin, unlike Pierce, excludes himself from his paintings. Chapin of New Jersey, has a Puritan approach. Waldo Pierce of Maine, charges pell mell, pulling art and life together as did that one-time sage of New Jersey, Walt Whitman.

SAVING SPRINGDALE'S MONEY

BOROUGH MANAGER J. F. PIERCE IN NEW WATER-SOFTENING PLANT

Checking the purity and softness of the water that Springdale Borough's using through its new $55,000 water-softening plant. The borough will save $15,000 annually.

WATER PLANT OPENED

Springdale has started operation of its new municipally owned water plant and it's saving residents of the borough about $15,000 a year, Borough Manager J. F. Pierce said today.

Construction of the plant was completed about a month ago, at the cost of $55,000. It supplies 650,000 gallons of soft, pure water daily, from three wells, 60 feet deep.

The water plant, the only gravity Zeolite upfloat type in the section, was constructed because of the hardness of the water the borough residents had been using.

Manager Pierce, who also is an engineer, designed the plant and selected the type of machinery used. He said that whereas the water formerly used had a hardness of "22 grains," water softened in the new plant has been reduced to "four grains."

Softening of the water has reduced the soap and plumbing bills of the community, Pierce said. Hard water requires more soap than soft water, and caused a chalk-like deposit in hot water coils that necessitates yearly repairs, he said.

In the new plant, water is softened in two huge tanks which contain chemicals necessary for the process. Common table salt is used to regenerate the chemicals in the tanks.

Sewickley also has a water softening plant, but it is of a different type. Instead of the upfloat system, a down float is used.

Circle Traffic Plans Explained by P. R. R.

sylvania Railroad should purchase and dedicate to the city the property for the widening of Penn avenue to 120 feet, and also build a modern passenger station fronting on Penn avenue, together with all necessary facilities.

NEW PLANS

After consideration of Council's invitation, the Company agreed to the proposition, and immediately commenced to purchase the property. Plans were prepared by the railroad and submitted to Council providing for the widening of Penn avenue to a point between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets at which point a new street was projected diagonally to Liberty avenue near Twenty-first street. The railroad's plan provided also for the extension of Grant street, widened to 120 feet, to intersect with Penn avenue, all substantially in accordance with the Planning Commission's plan, thus providing a cartway for five lines of traffic in each direction from Liberty avenue to Seventeenth street on Penn avenue.

The company is willing to dedicate to the city the property required for this plan, although the dedication of this land was not contemplated under the City Planning Commission's proposal, and also to pay $157,000 for the relocation of sewers and water lines.

COMPARES COSTS

The cost to the city under the proposal of the railroad company is estimated at $666,000, less the contribution by the railroad company given above, or a net cost to the city of $509,000. This compared with about $300,000 the city would have to spend for repaving Liberty avenue and Penn avenue if there were no terminal project.

The committee appointed by the City Council to design a street plan for this project recommended that a two-level intersection be constructed at Penn avenue and Grant street extended with low-level passages for so-called through vehicular traffic from a point on Grant street near Liverty avenue to Thirteenth street on Penn avenue, and westward on Penn avenue to a point west of Eleventh street, and a high-level traffic circle at the intersection for local vehicular traffic.

The value of the additional private and railroad property required for this plan (according to the city appraisal) plus the cost of construction, less the $157,000 referred to above, exceeds the cost of the railroad company's plan by $1,407,000. The railroad company has offered to contribute as much towards this plan as it offered to contribute to the plan recommended by it.

OTHER DONATIONS RECALLED

In conjunction with the project to widen Penn avenue, the Pennsylvania Railroad will have spent at least $6,600,000 in the purchase of property. This purchase embraces all the property 100 feet in depth from Eleventh street to Twenty-first street, 60 feet of which depth is to be dedicated by the company for street purposes. Thus the cost to the railroad company of the land to be dedicated to the city for widening Penn avenue is $3,960,000, which, added to the value of the railroad company's land required for extending Grant street from Liberty street to Penn avenue, according to the city appraisal, is $1,453,000, giving a total of $5,413,000 as the value of the land to be dedicated for streets, or an excess of $2,341,000 in value of the streets to be vacated and revert to the railroad company.

The company has already donated land and construction to the amount of $2,186,000 in excess of the value of land received in connection with the widening of William Penn way from Seventh avenue to Liberty avenue; the widening of Seventh avenue from Bigelow boulevard to New Grant street; and the straightening, widening, and improving New Grant street from Seventh avenue to Liberty avenue, for which no real return has been realized by the company.

Excluding this donation of $2,186,000, the construction of the new passenger terminal stands to cost the Pennsylvania Railroad in excess of $20,000,000, and does not include $11,000,000 spent in the last two years to build new produce and freight house facilities on adjacent areas.

P. R. R. SUBWAY STAND SCORED

Hesitancy of the Pennsylvania Railroad to share additional costs of the proposed "Z Plan"—above those of the "T Plan"—for a downtown street car subway having its terminal in the soon-to-be-built P. R. R. depot, drew criticism today from L. W. Monteverde, chairman of the Department of City Planning.

Monteverde declared the railroad's estimate of its share in the project's cost is based upon property valuations four years later, and correspondingly higher, than those used in compiling the city's apportionate cost.

Monteverde asserted the railroad's contribution to the city in the widening of Grant street should be computed upon 1925 property values and not those of 1929. This difference, he estimated, is a matter of $1,434,180.

He also pointed out that the railroad company has declared the "T Plan" inadequate and that the "Z Plan" offers the only satisfactory solution of the traffic need.

HOME BURNED, 4 MOURN TOYS

Four young children of William Warnock, former city detective, of 1624 Alvarado street, Beechview, today were lamenting the loss of Christmas toys which were destroyed last night when flames gutted the two-story frame dwelling in which they lived.

The children, Ellen, 9; Betty, 5; Evelyn, 2 and Billy, eight months, looked sadly on the ruins of their home today and saw through a doorway charred remains of dolls, hobby horses and toy animals Santa Claus had brought in anticipation of the Yuletide.

Their Christmas will not be an unhappy one. Warnock has assured the four that substitute toys will take the place of those Santa Claus left on his early trip through Beechview.

The children and their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Warnock, are being cared for at the home of a relative, next door. Everything the family owned was lost in the fire.

The house caught fire, it is believed, from an overheated furnace. The loss was estimated at $3,500 by firemen. No one was home at the time.

CITY MILK FUND HELD AMPLE

Present conditions do not require an additional appropriation from Council to buy milk for free distribution to babies, according to Dr. C. B Maits, director of the health department. Recent rumors had reported insufficient funds to provide milk for infants.

Milk distribution is being conducted on the same basis as in previous years. The fund has a balance of $3,000, of which $1,600 will be applied on November bills and the remaining $1,400 will be available for the current month's expense, Dr. Maits said.

He issued the following statement:

"Summer is the time when there is the greatest need for milk for babies.

"In the fall it has been the custom of the health department to reduce the amount of milk distributed, but care is taken to discontinue distribution mainly to older children registered at the stations.

"None of the urgent, needy cases is affected, and careful investigation is made by the nurse before action is taken.

"The Mayor and Council always have been very willing to supply any money needed for these health projects and if need should develop for more milk we would go to Council full of confidence that the money would be provided."

ROCKNE DROPS ONLY 12 IN 12 YEARS.

HOW a game between the unbeaten and never-tied football teams of Pitt and Notre Dame would result is a question, but, leaving that aside as something that cannot be answered, there can be no denying that the record completed by the Irish for 1929 with last Saturday's 7 to 0 victory over the Army in New York, when Jack Elder carried the day with a 99 yard run for a touchdown, is unparalleled in modern intercollegiate gridiron competition. For not only did the Ramblers win every one of their nine games, but all of them were played away from home.

Knute Rockne

Running up a string of nine consecutive victories in one season over such teams as Indiana, Navy, Wisconsin, Carnegie Tech, Georgia Tech, Drake, Southern California, Northwestern and Army, all on foreign fields, is an achievement that will not be duplicated in a hurry. The South Benders started off with a trip to Bloomington, and then jumped to Baltimore, to Chicago, to Pittsburgh, to Atlanta, to Chicago again, twice in succession, to Evanston and to New York. And much of the time, including last Saturday's finale against the Army, they lacked the inspiring influence of the presence of their coach. It is an attest of the sound football knowledge imparted to them by Knute Rockne and of the fighting spirit he instilled in them.

TRULY, 1929 has added another brilliant chapter to the remarkable record of Rockne-coached teams at Notre Dame. That record is one that challenges comparison. In the 12 seasons that he has completed since he succeeded Jess Harper as head coach in 1918 Rockne's elevens have played a total of 112 games, of which they won no fewer than 95, against only 12 defeats, an average of but one to a season, and five ties. Four times they have gone through unbeaten and not tied.

The year-by-year record of the Irish under Rockne follows: 1918, won three, lost one and tied two; 1919, won nine and lost none; 1920, won nine and lost none (two successive seasons without a defeat or a tie); 1921, won 10 and lost one; 1922, won eight, lost and tied one; 1923, won nine and lost one; 1924, won 10 and lost none; 1925, won seven, lost two and tied one; 1926, won nine and lost one; 1927, won seven, lost one and tied one; 1928, won five and lost four; 1929, won nine and lost one.

WITH Harry Stuhldreher leading the Four Horsemen, the Ramblers had their greatest season in 1924, when they won all of their 10 games and were acclaimed national champions. The poorest season came last year, when four contests were lost out of nine played. In no other campaign has a Rockne team lost more than two games.

Harry Stuhldreher

Of the 12 defeats suffered in the same number of years, three were administered by Nebraska, two each by Carnegie Tech and the Army, and one each by Wisconsin, Georgia Tech, Southern California, Iowa and Michigan Aggies. The five ties were played with Minnesota, Penn State, Army, Nebraska and Great Lakes.

NOTRE DAME'S 95 victories in the same period were rolled up at the expense of 35 different opponents. Eight were scored over the Army, seven each over Indiana and Georgia Tech, six over Purdue, five each over Carnegie Tech, Northwestern and Kalamazoo College, four each over Nebraska and Drake, three each over Navy, Southern California, Lombard and Michigan Aggie, two each over Penn State, Wisconsin, Beloit, Princeton, Minnesota, Wabash, Butler, St. Louis, De Pauw and Kalamazoo Normal, and one each over Stanford, Rutgers, Detroit, Loyola of New Orleans, Coe, Baylor, Haskell Indians, Marquette, Valparaiso, Mt. Union, Mornipgside and Case. In the last 12 Army-Notre Dame meetings, the Generals have won only twice and tied once against nine wins for the Irish. The complete count is 11 victories for Notre Dame, four for the Army and one tie.

IN the meeting with Ohio State at the Stadium this year, Pitt played its first game against a member of the Big Ten Conference. If rumors from the Middle West are well founded, the Panthers next season will open gridiron relations with another team belonging to that body, though the member in question now stands temporarily suspended from that body.

No official confirmation has been given out at Pitt headquarters, but it is rumored when Athletic Director W. D. Harrison announces his program it will show that the Panthers have booked a game with the University of Iowa for 1930. It is said the game in all probability will be played in Iowa City.

FACULTY representatives of the Big Ten are to meet in Chicago this week to act on Iowa's case, and the general opinion is that the Hawkeyes will be given a two-year suspension. Forced to fill up the schedule for next fall with outside teams, Iowa is understood to have arranged games for 1930 with Notre Dame, Army and New York U., in addition to Pitt and to have a tentative date with Nebraska.

Rumors of a new number on the slate of another Pittsburgh team also come from outside. Cincinnati reports say that Carnegie Tech is to appear on the schedule of St. Xavier College next season, the game to be played on Corcoran Field in the Queen City.

W. D. Harrison

THE longest run made in football this year has been credited to Louis Weller, captain of the Haskell Indians, who was seen in action for only about a minute against the Dukes here recently, and who ran 105 yards for a touchdown against Creighton in Omaha on October 26 after catching a kick five yards behind his own goal line. It was three yards longer than Dick Gentle's run for Penn last Thursday, six yards longer than Jack Elder's game winning sprint for Notre Dame on Saturday, and stands as the season's record. But that doesn't apply to all kinds of football. They've dug up something to beat it in another branch of the game, the hero being Noel Jubenville, of the Windsor Mic Macs.

THIS player sprinted 115 yards to score a touchdown against St. Michael's College, of Toronto. It was in a rugby game that Jubenville made his run, and the game was a recent contest in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union at Windsor.

Receiving the ball on a lateral pass from Bolley Jeffers, a teammate, who had caught a kick five yards behind his goal, Jubenville ran the entire length of the field. The dash of 115 yards was made

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Over the well-trapped fairways of the Hillcrest course today trooped the greatest figures of the professional ranks in the opening skirmish of a six-day battle that will decide 1929 championship of the Professional Golfers' Association.

Led by the incomparable Walter Hagen, the field that will seek both gold and glory in a golfing way is the most brilliant ever assembled in Southern California for tournament play.

PIRATE ICEMEN ON ROAD TO MONTREAL

By CARL W. SHATTO.

The Pirates, looking in vain for their hockey cloud's silver lining, were oozing gloom from every pore last night when they left to keep their appointment with the Maroons in Montreal tomorrow evening.

The 6-2 setback which they received at the hands of the world champion Boston Bruins here Saturday night so dampened the Bucs' spirits that they found it difficult to laugh off the fine collection of body bruises which the Hub puckmen handed out in the rough fray, and contemplation of the impending joust with the Maroons augmented rather than dissipated the Pirate pessimism.

Ordinarily Manager Frank Frederickson and his men would regard a debate with the Montreal heavyweights as a meeting in which they stood a fair chance of picking up a point or two in the league standings, but injuries to Pirate stars tend to make the situation an extraordinary one—extraordinarily bad.

CASUALTY LIST GROWS

Herb Drury, flashy center out with a broken hand, picked up a valuable addition to his hospital squad last week when Harold Darragh, stellar wingman, had his cracked ribs cracked again, and then contracted a skin ailment. A rash has broken out on Darragh's face and neck, and he is temporarily disfigured. Neither Darragh nor Drury was in the lineup Saturday night and neither accompanied the team to Montreal.

The handicap occasioned by Drury's absence has been offset to a certain extent by the signing of Ren Manners, star center of the local amateur league last season, who made his debut as a pro Saturday. Manager Frederickson is unable to do anything to reduce the handicap occasioned by Darragh's absence, however, and the Pirates' victory chances will not return to normalcy until the veteran star returns to the lineup.

There is no doubt but that Darragh's absence smoothed Boston's victory path Saturday night. With Tex White teaming up with Frederickson and Hib Milks for the first time, the Bucs' starting front line appeared to pack little of its customary scoring punch. Its passing, usually smooth and accurate, was wild and ragged, and this inefficient team play probably cost the locals many scoring opportunities. The shifting of White also weakened the Bucs' second front line, for Tex usually performs well with the reserves.

HAWKS HERE THURSDAY

It is not likely that the Pirates will be able to turn in a triumph until Darragh returns to action, and Montreal should experience little difficulty in downing the local tomorrow.

The Chicago Hawks, much more powerful than they were last season, and one of the teams that the Pirates must beat out if they are to get into the Stanley Cup play-offs, make their season's debut at Duquesne Garden Thursday night, and every effort will be made to get Darragh back in harness by that time.

Sixteen minor and major penalties were handed out as the officials got in some deadly work here Saturday night. The Pirates were the leading sufferers, five of Boston's six goals being scored while one or more Bucs languished in the penalty box. The fans hissed and booed the referees from the start of the second period until the close of the game.

Jerry Lowrey provided some added excitement late in the final period when he engaged in a fist fight with Mickey MacKay, who wore Pirate livery last season. The cause of the Lowrey-MacKay outbreak was something of a mystery to the fans. Jerry, in disussing the bout after the game, explained that it was a case of mistaken identity.

The trouble started, Lowrey explained, when Taylor slammed Jerry into the boards during a dash down the ice. Lowrey resented the rough treatment, and both he and Taylor drew minor penalties when they squared off to exchange blows.

When Lowrey returned to the

GIRL ADMIRER HELPS OUT RIPLEY

Barrels of ink and tons of paper have been consumed in praise of Robert L. Ripley's "Believe It Or Not," which is a huge favorite with readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. But it took little Dorothy Jane Clifford, sixth grade pupil of Atoka, Okla., to deliver the most unique eulogy of them all.

Believe it or not, but Dorothy Jane is a poet of no mean ability—and, further than that, has wisdom far beyond her years. You see, this charming little Oklahoman knows the value of publicity and the thrill of seeing her name in print—and she's even quoted the Bible to justify that thrill!

QUOTES THE BIBLE

And here's Dorothy Jane's letter to prove it:

"Dear Ripley:

"I sure get a big 'kick' out of your feature. I read it every day and sometimes make up some of my own—believe it or not, I do. I am sending you a poem I wrote for you and would like to see my name in print. Some people say they don't like even favorable publicity, but I think such people should read that commandment about false witness, don't you?

"Yours truly, believe me

And now for the poem, which was inspired by Dorothy Jane's close study of Ripley's daily queerosities:

A FISH STORY—
BELIEVE IT OR NOT.

He caught sea fish in the desert—
The weather—cold as ice.
An old gray cat (remember that)
Mothered three orphaned mice.

A seventeen-year-old grandma
Was wealthy without a cent
She picked—I'm told—a cotton boll
With neither seed nor lint.

A hen laid an egg on Monday
With neither yolk nor white—
The Sabbath is never Sunday,
And negative dark makes light.

Photographers are awful—
They stand you upsidedown.

To steal is smart and lawful—
A base on the baseball ground.)

I've heard some yarns and stories—
Untrue and not worth while.
Believe it or not, Ripley has got
Truth that will make you smile.

ATHLETIC HEAD RESIGNS

READING, Pa., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Al (Doggie) Julian has relinquished his position as director of athletics at Albright College. The athletic mentor will not coach basketball this winter, nor will he tutor the baseball and track candidates next spring.

Julian last night refused to discuss his resignation other than to affirm reports that he had quit. He refused to give a reason for leaving the school.

"I won't be back to coach the rest of the sports and I don't know about football next year," he said. "I am now considering an offer from another school." He refused to say what college had been dickering for his services.

COUNTY LEAGUE LID-LIFTER TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Allegheny County Basketball League gets away to its fourth season at 9:15 tonight in the Duke gym, when Morry's Fintex five, formerly the Enoch Rauhs meets the Charleroi Lions. A preliminary contest will be played between the Lou Gordon Juniors junior amateur titlists last year and an opponent to be named today.

Harvey White, captain of the Carnegie Tech quintet last season, and Lou Reilly, former Penn State leader, will make their debut as members of the Fintex outfit.

The Morrys' Fintex manager also has Johnny Serbin and Eddie Losman, former Duquesne luminaries; Sammy Klateman, Wy Paris, Bill Miller and Nate Lippe, former Geneva star, on his splendid squad.

A number of former collegiate and scholastic stars adorn the Charleroi roster, including Sammy Fornaciari, last year voted the best man in the Washington County tourney; Billy Paul, former all-W. P. I. A. L. Monessen High guard; Al Wildman, formerly of Grove City College, and Edwi. Laatu, former St..te star.

The Morry's Fintex five enjoyed a spirited workout yesterday afternoon on the Duke floor, opposing Coach Chick Davies' Duquesne University varsity squad. The Fintex passers appeared to be in excellent shape for the opener.

According to reports from Charleroi, the Lions are coming here prepared to take the measure of the locals. The game should prove a close one from start to finish.

Dribbles

Lou Alman, former star of the Enoch Rauhs, is back from the Pacific Coast in the pink of physical condition and it would not be surprising to see him in action in the County League this season. Alman, before leaving for California, was one of the most accurate shooters in the County League. While in the West he played basketball for the Los Angeles Athletic Club. He would make a valuable addition to one of the County League Clubs.

The Goldensons, under the coaching of Yans Wallace, former star of the Pittsburgh Morrys in the old Central League, enjoyed a brisk practice session at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House yesterday. The South Siders displayed a fine passing attack, thanks to the presence of Moy Rubenstein and Jock Rosenberg in their lineup. Monk Ketchel, judging from his showing, should enjoy his best season on the floor. Stark and Holmes also made impressive showings.

Community House will oppose the South Side Falcons tonight in the only game scheduled in the West Penn League.

According to reports from Cleveland, the Cleveland Rosies have repurchased Johnny Beckman from the New York Celtics. Beckman was a member of the American League champions last season.

The Irene Kaufmann Settlement House meets Trinity Church at Trinity and Joseph Hornes play at National Music in the two Central Pittsburgh League games tonight.

Greenberg, young center of the Y. M. H. A., was the main factor in his team's victory over the Penn Five in a West Penn League game Saturday night. The victory gave the Oaklanders an even break in their first two league games, having lost to the South Side Falcons Monday night.

Railways opposes Philadelphia Company and Sales-Service faces Duquesne Light in the two Philadelphia Company League games at Fifth Avenue High tonight. This loop appears to be stronger than ever this season.

National Amateur Cue Tourney Opens

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Perry Dickens and Max Shimon, Milwaukee amateur billiard players, will meet tonight in the first challenge match for the national amateur three-cushion championship.

Dickens is defending champion, having been given the title as runnerup, when Charles E. Jordan, of Los Angeles, was disqualified by the amateur division of the National Billiard Association of America. Bud Westhus, of St. Louis, has been named first challenger for a match with the winner of tonight's contest.

PITT, PURDUE, NOTRE DAME DESERVING

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Pitt, Notre Dame and Purdue, just claimants for the National Intercollegiate football championship, having successfully campaigned through difficult schedules are likely to find opinion divided with regards to any final awarding of the National crown.

There is only one way in which to settle such a question, that being to put on a three-cornered tournament, possibly for the benefit of indignant sports writers, but as such a plan is entirely out of focus, the title will be awarded those having the strongest lungs and the loudest voices.

IRISH TILT DRAB

The Irish finished up a very difficult program by beating the Army here Saturday. The contest was a very drab, ordinary sort of an affair, one which would have had the fans yawning if it not been so cold. Anyone who dared yawn in the Yankee Stadium Saturday was in great danger of having his pan freeze that way. Which would be very ridiculous, indeed.

If it had not been for Jack Elder's fine run, and when you come to think of it, the Army deserved to be licked for tossing one of those flat passes, it would have been a thrilless afternoon.

Personally, I think Notre Dame has as good a claim to mythical title as either Pitt or Purdue, though I must say, that on the form the Irish exhibited against Army, either Pitt or Carnegie Tech would have beaten them. Tech on the form it flashed in lacing New York Thanksgiving and Pitt on the basis of power and speed it employed in kicking Tech earlier in the year.

There is a wide difference of opinion among the football notables gathered in this town for the annual informal pow wow, but the inclination on the part of most coaches is to concede Pitt an edge over either Notre Dame or Purdue, mainly because of Tom Parkinson, Toby Uansa, Joe Donchess, Ray Montgomery and the Panther reserve strength.

The Rose Bowl committee, of Pasadena, is supposed to be making up its mind at this very moment with regard to which team it shall invite to represent the East in the annual Tournament of Roses game New Year's Day. With the Irish declining with thanks, even in advance of the formal issuing of the invitation, Pitt, Colgate, Purdue and Tulane remain in the running.

COLGATE FAVORED

The tip here is that Colgate will be the fortunate school. The word has been mouthed about that California, almost certain to be the Western representative, prefers to meet Andy Kerr's boys rather than Jock Sutherland's.

You see, the Rose Bowl committee practically puts the inviting of the Eastern team up to the Western outfit, by permitting the home team to vote on a list of Eastern possibilities. California, so I have been told, prefers to take a chance with Colgate rather than Pitt. Just why they think Kerr's fine team would be any easier than the unbeaten and untied Panthers must be listed along with off ideas such as Bob Waddell's contention

Erie welterweight, who boxes Allen Beatty, of McKeesport, in the semi-final to the Tommy Freeman-Jack Manley bout at Motor Square Garden tonight.

FREEMAN, MANLEY BOX AT GARDEN TONIGHT

M'TIERNAN, BELMONT GO IN MAKING

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Three boxing shows are scheduled in the Pittsburgh district tonight and Willie Davies, of Charleroi, still an outstanding contender for the world flyweight championship, despite his recent defeat by Black Bill in the New York tournament, boxes Gene Huat, the Frenchman, in the Canadian eliminations at Toronto.

Tommy Freeman, of Erie, who went over with a bang in his only other local appearance when he defeated Georgie Levine, of Brooklyn, at Motor Square Garden, returns to meet Jack Manley, of Syracuse, in the 10-round windup in the same ring. The Junction Park dancing pavilion at New Brighton ushers in its indoor season with Ray Eberle, the announcer, in the role of matchmaker, offering a return bout between Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, and Carl Cavelli, of Canton, O., as his piece de resistance, and U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Romeo Pacelli, of New Castle, will top off the card at the New Castle Jolly Bowl.

WINNER OVER COOPER

Freeman, in his most recent bout, knocked out Farmer Joe Cooper, of Terre Haute, Ind., eight days after Cooper won his questionable verdict over Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, at Motor Square. He is recognized as one of the outstanding 150-pounders in the game and the difficulty promoters experience in matching him furnishes the best line on his rating in the eyes of the other stars in his division. After the battle tonight, he returns to Erie, where he meets Canada Lee on Friday night. Manley, is opponent here, is a youngster who has met some of the leaders in his class and promises to surprise the fans as well as Freeman with his display of fistic wares. He arrived in town this morning with his manager, Joe Netro.

A newcomer in these parts, Billy Edwards, of Erie, trots out against Allen Beatty, flashy McKeesport Negro, in the eight-round semi-final at the Garden tonight; Andy Andrucci, of the East End, meets Frankie Moran, of Homewood, in the second bout, and Paul Balint and Red Hartley, featherweight rivals, of the North Side, meet in the opener.

Bus Hardy, of Beaver Falls, and Jackie Coogan, of Canton, O., box the semi-final at Junction Park and there will be three other bouts. Three six-round preliminaries are carded at New Castle, with Wildcat Austin and Louie Severio in the semi-final.

DAVIES MEETS HUAT

Both Davies and Huat were eliminated from the New York flyweight tournament by Black Bill, the Cuban Negro. They were ranked as the favorites to win the event, along with Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia. The winner of their clash in Toronto tonight will have considerable to say about the final coronation of a champion in the class.

The "natural" of the season here is in the making, between Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, and Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock. Belmont formerly was managed by Bunny Buntach, of Braddock, who now handles McTiernan and George Panka. McTiernan boxes Mickey Solmen, of New Castle, in a return bout at the Moose Temple next Friday night, while Belmont, now handled by James (Red) Mason, is matched with Farmer Joe Cooper at Motor Square Garden one week from tonight. If Belmont beats Cooper, who holds that "decision" over McTiernan, the stage will be perfectly set for a clash "of the century" between Jimmy and Buck.

BUILDS NEW BOAT

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Sir Henry Segrave has begun the building at Cowes, Isle of Wight, of "Miss England II" with which he hopes to win back the British International Speedboat Trophy from the United States and set a new world record at Detroit in 1930. The new boat was designed in collaboration with Fred Cooper and will be equipped with two Rolls-Royce engines developing 4,000 horsepower.

Browns to Ask Broadcasting Be Prohibited

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.?(AP.)—P. D. C. Ball, president of the St. Louis Browns, has announced his intention to request the American League to prohibit radio broadcasting of American League baseball games next season.

He plans to lay the matter before the American League meeting in New York next week. The Browns permitted broadcasting of their home games last season and it is Ball's theory that this cut down attendance at the games.

Alfred W. McCann

famous pure food expert, long active in crusades for pure foods and sanitary factories.

"Cremo cigars are made as you would have them made—as safe as certified foods!

"Every tobacco leaf entering the Cremo factory is scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods. And every sanitary precaution known to science is taken to safeguard its purity along each step of the way.

"Cremo cigars are folded, wrapped and tipped by amazing inventions without the menace of spit . . . in factories that are models of cleanliness . . . air-flooded, sun-bathed, spotlessly clean!

"This Cremo purity is sealed . . . in separate sanitary foil wrappers. Thus the method of manufacture insures a cigar that aims to give you the same standard as found in certified milk."

Here's a suggestion deliberately made with confidence, which you smokers of imported cigars will appreciate: Try a Certified Cremo. You will recognize the superiority of Certified Cremo which starts with the choicest and tenderest leaves, ripe and mellow, and continues in goodness through a slow, expensive maturing and mellowing process . . . and topped off with a wrapper that is really fine! For 5 cents you get the delight of a high priced cigar for Certified Cremo contains no scrap—no floor sweepings—all long filler—all fresh, tender leaves. Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo that insures uniformly fine, clean cigars. Foil-wrapped . . . sanitary . . . crush-proof . . . the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall must have had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

Do you remember the old, filthy shop where the man in the window rolled the leaves with dirty fingers . . . and spit on the ends? What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

MAJESTICS GET BREAK TO TOP WEST VIEW

HOPE-HARVEY EVENS SCORE WITH PARKERS

By TOM BIRKS.

Playing [illegible] that resembled a skating [illegible] Hope-Harvey Majestics [illegible] their greatest desire of the season by beating West View [illegible] the Ludlow Municipal [illegible] WHERE by a score of 6 [illegible] at West View Park yesterday afternoon with only 2,000 fans braving the bad roads and [illegible] to watch the return game.

There is a chance a good game would have resulted had the players been able to keep their feet long enough to get the ball any place, but the ice-field had been scraped, and this did not help the footing and cut down the players' efforts to get any place with the ball. However, it might be stated that Levy was an exception.

LEVY IN STAR ROLE

Living up to his reputation of being the best ball carrier on local sandlots, Levy, a former Quantico Marine, baffled gravity by making all sorts of queer turns without spilling his punting bag of punts with a hazardous foothold as a handicap was wonderful.

For the second Sunday, the only score came in the nature of a break. In the second quarter with eight yards to go on the fourth down, Levy decided to kick. It was a beautiful punt. Stanley Berkman was playing safety man, and he decided to let the ball roll over the West View end zone. However, the ball started bumping around and when Murphy tried to down the ball on the two-yard line the ball bounced and hit Naylor, Murphy falling on the pigskin over the West View goal line.

OFFICIALS SEE PLAY

There were a number of different ideas regarding the touchdown, but the officials seemed to be in a position to rule on the play, and they did. Some day, when these two great teams meet, we are going to see an honest-to-goodness touchdown made without a chance of someone protesting the legality of the score.

The game was hard-fought, and the players did their best under the conditions, and these conditions were anything but conducive to playing a high-class brand of ball.

West View appeared good at the ends. When Lee Berkman went in at right end, Levy had been making plenty of trips around that territory, but he put a stop to that. Berkman also stopped Levy's running of punts back.

The Majestics seemed due to win. Of course, the score was obtained luckily, but so was the score of the previous Sunday, so that evens matters. The lineup:

Majestics—6		West View—0
Wild	L E	Brown
Gallagher	L T	Rhodes
Nixon	L G	Graeber
Cutler	C	Muzzio
Karcis	R G	Kelly
Murphy	R T	Hummel
Scanlon	R E	Harmer
Vaughan	Q	Berkman
Levy	L H	Cole
Whitmore	R H	Naylor
Dymer	F	Koch

Score by periods:

Majestics	0	0	6	0—6

OVEREND MADE DIRECTOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—W. G. Bingham, athletic director at Harvard University, was elected president of the Eastern Association for the Election of Football Officials at the annual banquet of this body in the Hotel McAlpin here last night. Neil Fleming, graduate manager at Penn State, was elected secretary-treasurer, and Clarence G. (Buddy) Overend, graduate manager at Carnegie Tech, was elected to the board of directors.

The office to be filled by Fleming was created by special dispensation of some one or other. Last year Harry Heneage, director of athletics at Dartmouth served as secretary, and Ernie Couzens, of Pennsylvania, was treasurer. The death of Couzens left the latter's office vacant and it was decided by the association to combine the money-takers' and scribes' offices.

The affair was well attended, close to 200 being present. Tri-state representatives included Jock Sutherland, Dean Friesell and W. Don Harrison, of Pitt; Ira Rodgers and Harry Stansbury, of West Virginia; Cam Henderson and Jennings Randolph, of Davis-Elkins; Clarence G. Overend and Bob Waddell, of Carnegie Tech and John D. Holohan, of Duquesne.

Long's Sport Comment

possible by the fact that a rugby field is 110 yards long, or 10 yards longer than the gridiron in American football.

THERE is a difference in the rules that adds to the brilliance of Jubenville's feat, as the rugby code, which calls for 12 men on a side instead of 11, does not permit the use of interference to aid a runner.

Only the linemen can buck and open holes. Once past the line of scrimmage, the ball carrier is left to his own resources. He must dodge and sidestep and weave his way down the field without assistance, though it is always permissible for a team mate to receive a lateral pass.

Louis Weller

JUBENVILLE'S run has had only one parallel in the history of American football. The lone gridder to make a run of the same length was Wyllys Terry, of Yale, who, when the field was 110 yards long, ran 115 yards against Wesleyan on November 4, 1884. The records show two runs of 110 yards. The first was made by G. S. McCaa, of Lafayette, on October 15, 1909, against Swarthmore, and the second was turned in by Benny Boynton, of Williams, on November 6, 1920, against Hamilton.

HEUGON WINS

PARIS, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Le Vicomte Max Derivaud's Heugon won the Jousselin Stakes, a three and one-half mile steeplechase at Auteuil yesterday.

Bill McKechnie In Boston for Conference

Bill McKechnie, new manager of the Braves, today is in Boston where he and other officials of the Braves will confer regarding their team.

Furnished with a successful hunting season, Skipper Bill departed last night for Boston. In company with his new associates McKechnie will head for Chattanooga where they will attend the minor league convention which begins Wednesday.

The Wilkinsburg citizen also will take in the annual meeting of the magnates in New York next week.

The Boston bosses are anxious to do business with anybody who might have somebody who would help them. The Braves finished in last place this year.

WEATHER HURT ARMY-IRISH TILT--JONES

By CAPT. BIFF JONES,
Head Football Coach, United States Military Academy.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 2.—The weather always plays an important part in the strategy of the game. Temperature, wind and rain force the discard of certain plays. Saturday, in the Army-Notre Dame game, this was particularly so. The temperature was around 20, causing numb hands and fingers, which made it risky to try plays calling for delicate handling of the ball. The ground was frozen as hard as asphalt and was a little slick. Cleats could not bite into the ground. Therefore it was hard to operate cut back plays—plays starting fast to the flank and then breaking suddenly toward the line of scrimmage. When such plays were tried the ball carrier resembled Charley Chaplin with his skidding turn.

WIND IS HAZARD

Throughout the game the wind was a constant hazard. The flags on the top of the stadium were whipping north, while the ground wind was diametrically opposite and just as strong. This, of course, affected the kicking and passing game. On the second play of the game the Army quarterback used the wind to his advantage. It was second down on the Army 25-yard line. Looking over the Notre Dame defense, he noted that the backfield was playing too close to the line of scrimmage. Without taking the regular kick formation, he called a kick. Of course it sailed over the head of the Notre Dame safety. The wind got under it and carried it 50 yards to the Notre Dam 25-yard line, where an Army end fell on it. Had he kicked from regular kick formation, on the orthodox third down, the Notre Dame safety would have had a good opportunity to run it back. As it was, the kick took the scene of operations from the Army goal line to the Notre Dame goal line. And, since a Notre Dame man had touched the ball just before the Army end fell on it, the ball remained in Army's possession.

ICE HINDERS

At this point, the Army quarterback had his first opportunity for a score. He called the fullback, Murrell, for a plunge. On the ice surface, Murrell slipped before he got to the line of scrimmage. On the next play Cagle had the same experience. Here were two precious downs lost in important territory. Third and 12, so he called a wide play around end. The play got past but the footing was too treacherous for the turn.

The situation was now fourth down, 15 yards to go, on Notre Dames 35-yard line. What would you do? He could punt and try to put the ball outside close to the goal line. Or he could punt over the goal line for a touchback. He could try a field goal or a forward pass. Either of the last two carry a good chance for score. He called the pass, which was incomplete. The ball went over to Notre Dame on the 35-yard line. The quarterback paid 15 yards for a chance to score.

In the second period, Army had the ball on Notre Dame's nine-yard line. It was third down and nine yards to go. Normal tactics would call for a running play and waiting for fourth down to pass. Against as smart a defensive team as Notre Dame is, it is useless to always do the obvious. Therefore, the pass was called on third down. The wind at a right angle to the flight of the ball, cut down its carry, allowing the interception which cost Army the game.

CARIDEO PRAISED

Carideo, the Notre Dame quarterback, throughout the game, used good judgment in punting away from Cagle. This, without question, saved Notre Dame much yardage.

The Notre Dame quarterback also used good judgment at the end of the game. The score was 7-0 in his favor. The ball was in his possession on his own 10-yard line. It was first down, with a minute and a half to go. He got close to the center and took the ball himself for three consecutive plays. This allowed no chance of a fumble and let time run out; ending the game.

NOTRE DAME SPRINT STAR INTERCEPTS PASS FOR TOUCHDOWN

Diagramed photo shows how Jack Elder eluded the opposition to race 99 yards up the field for the only touchdown of Notre Dame's 7-0 victory over the Army at the Yankee Stadium, New York, Saturday, after intercepting Cagle's pass on the one-yard line, just inside the sideline. The pass was intended for Carlmark, the end, who already was over the goal line waiting for the ball when Elder dashed in front of him and made the catch. Colerick, the end, ran across the field to lead Elder's interference. Cagle himself came closest to tackling Elder and even de did not get his hands on the sprint star.

that it is easier to fill one in the middle rather than on either end.

A new coach has been selected by the athletic powers at Columbia, with an official announcement due some time today or tomorrow. Herb McCracken, present Lafayette mentor, was considered, but Herb was not signed. The rumor with the most robust appearance here is that it's Lou Little, of Georgetown. Glenn Thistlewaite also has been named as a phantom shot.

Unless you picked Georgetown over Detroit, Saturday's few football games wound up about as was expected. Villanova took Temple, which Harry Stuhldreher's smart eleven figured to do; Boston College beat Holy Cross, and the Navy scored somewhat of an upset in beating Dartmouth, but the Big Green, so they say, refused to regard the contest in the light of a regularly scheduled affair and consequently did not enter the tilt in the correct frame of mind.

TO SELECT COACH

Southern California bumped Washington State in a Pacific Coast Conference game. Baylor kicked over Rice; Southern Methodist and Texas Christian tied, and South Carolina downed North Carolina State.

Great regret was expressed hereabouts that Knute Rockne could not be on hand to see his Irish win their final game and keep their record clear. Rockne and Chick Meehan are Broadway's favorites.

Tom Keane, Syracuse's famous track coach, and Mrs. Keane were listed among the sport notables at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Other big shots who were chaperoned by their wives included Dean John Egan, of the Duquesne University law school; Frank Revour, Syracuse sportsman; Neal Fleming, Penn State's graduate manager; Coach Harry Stuhldreher, of Villanova; Frank Wahl, swimming coach of New York U.; Herb McCracken, Lafayette, and John D. Holohan, graduate manager at Duquesne.

BEZ CONGRATULATED

Style enthusiasts who attended either the Tech-N. Y. U. or the Army-Notre Dame games in the hope of seeing something new or bizarre were badly fooled. It was too cold, blankets, stocking caps, burlap sacks for the feet, leather and wool coats and anti-cold remedies that come in bottles, predominated at both games.

Hugo Bezdeck received the congratulations of the boys for the fine showing his Penn State club made against Pitt. Bez took his honors modestly.

Murrell, Army fullback, outpunted Frank Careido by a 10-yard average margin. Murrell's average was 43.4 yards for 11 punts. The Notre Dame star booted 11 times for a 38.8 figure. Murrell kicked 532 yards in all, Careido 426.

BUCS TO PLAY MAROONS

ice he saw a Bruin whom he thought was Taylor poised on one skate to let go a shot. Jerry promptly grasped this opportunity to even the score by giving his Bruin foe a violent body check which knocked him sprawling.

Lowrey explains that he was much surprised when he found the Bruin he had spilled was not Taylor. MacKay, mystified by the unmerited rough treatment he had received, did not hesitate to tell Lowrey what he thought of him—and the fight was on!

Fans, on their feet to get a better view of the fight, broke down the railing in front of the front-row seats, and an irate galleryite added to the confusion by throwing a bottle at one of the officials.

Judging from Saturday night's exhibition, the local fans as well as the local puckmen are going to take their hockey very seriously this season.

Cards Not to Build New Park for Decade

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Cardinals will remain in St. Louis and they will not build their own park for at least another 10 years. These two facts became established when President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals, notified the Dodier Realty Company of his intention to exercise his option to renew his lease on Sportsman's Park, for an additional 10 years beginning January 1, 1931, at a rental of $35,000 annually or an increase of $5,000 a year.

Cannon to Coach At Creighton, Said

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The Omaha Bee-News said today that Jack Cannon, star guard on the Notre Dame football team, had accepted an offer to become line coach at Creighton University here next year.

Cannon, it said, plans to study medicine at Creighton in addition to being a member of the coaching staff. Chet Wynne, a former Notre Dame player, is head coach.

Bowler Rolls 279, 298, 300 Scores

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Hitting the pins for a total of 877 in three games and an average of 292 1-3, Steve Brozdo, of this city, has turned in one of the finest bowling performances of all time.

Rolling at the Faloon Club alleys last night, Drozdo scored 279, 298 and 300, missing just 23 pins out of a possible 900. Drozdo, an employe of a local bank, is leading the City Bowling League. His record, however, was not made in competition.

Records show that a bowler named Caruana rolled 300, 300 and 279 in Buffalo in 1921 for a total of 879, two better than Drozdo's figures.

OREGON AGGIES PROVE REAL 'JONAH' TEAM

By Howard Harpster

(All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928)

Of all the football teams in the United States, the one aggregation which seems to be a "Jonah" to elevens from the East and Middle West is the Oregon Aggies football squad from Corwallis, Ore.

Howard Harpster.

Last season the Oregon team produced one of the year's biggest upsets when it soundly whipped a good New York U. eleven by the score of 25 to 13. Then, only recently, the Oregon boys proceeded to bring to an end the long string of gridiron victories which Detroit U. has won in the past few years, defeating the Detroit team 12 to 6.

MAKES EAST LOOK BAD

The fact that the Oregon Aggie eleven is rated on the Pacific Coast as only mediocre does anything but increase our Eastern and Midwestern prestige along the Western Coast.

The fans out West already are laboring under the impression that their favorite sons play better football than those of any other section of the country, and these two victories by one of their weakest teams over two of the East's best serve the Westerners as an "I told you so." It is a well-known fact that California and its neighboring states are mighty proud of, and a little boastful about, their football teams, and, unless the East makes a better showing in the next few years than it has in the past season or two in intersectional games, it will be impossible to hold the Westerners on the ground.

Detroit's defeat at the hands of Oregon brings to light the wonderful record which the Michigan boys have made. For more than two and a half years Detroit went undefeated. The last team to take its measure was Notre Dame, when Rockne's men won, 20 to 0, in the first game of the 1927 season. Since that time, the records list such victims as DePaul, Tulsa, Louisville, Loyola (New Orleans), Dayton, St. Louis, Michigan State, Fordham, Georgetown, Marquette, West Virginia and Michigan State.

BRAZIL GREAT PLAYER

The player most responsible for the fine showing which the team has made is Lloyd Brazil, the star halfback and the heart and soul of the team. Brazil is a real triple-threat star and excels in running, passing and kicking. Last season, he made many all-America teams, and his name likely will be found there again this fall. He is a great player and has won more than one game for his team through his own individual brilliance.

PLAY NO. 7.

Ervin, of Ohio State, in a game against Iowa, calls for time out when the ball is in possession of Iowa and not dead. The referee inadvertently blows his whistle and stops the play. Iowa claims a foul.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

The referee charges Ohio State's captain with a technical foul. The request for the time out should have been ignored, but happening as it did, the penalty is in order.

"WHAT A WONDER MEDICINE THIS NEW KONJOLA IS"

Young Pittsburgh Man Pays Glowing Tribute to Powers of New and Different Medicine.

Strange, but true, Konjola, the new and different medicine, achieves many of its most remarkable victories over cases that have held on for years, defying every medicine and treatment tried until Konjola was given a chance to prove its merits.

MR. ARTHUR M. BRENNEM

Konjola is a powerful medicine, though it contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It is powerful in the obstinate cases of the aged, yet may be given to the infant. A striking example of Konjola's powers was recently told to the Konjola Man by Mr. Arthur M. Brennem, 116 Meridan Street, Pittsburgh, whose case is typical of countless thousands of other cases wherein Konjola has triumphed. Hear all about this remarkable medicine for the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, from the Konjola Man. There is a Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street. Read the interesting experience of Mr. Brennem, who said to the Konjola Man recently:

"What a Wonder Medicine this New Konjola is! I had no idea that any one medicine could do what this medicine did in my case. I had about reached the conclusion that nothing could ever relieve me of indigestion and nervousness that had made me miserable for a long time, for I tried everything recommended without getting any results. I was extremely careful of my diet, but even this did no good. Pains and misery followed every meal regardless of what I ate. I certainly was discouraged as I felt myself getting weaker and weaker, and my nerves kept me awake for hours night after night. I feared that I was going to be compelled to give up my work.

"A friend who had suffered practically the same as myself told me of the wonderful relief he gained through taking Konjola, and he spoke so highly of this new medicine that I decided to put it to the test. And how Konjola met that test! In all I only took four bottles—that was all I needed. How I wish I had taken Konjola in the first place; what suffering I could have spared myself. Konjola went right to the very source of my troubles, and in one month practically made a new man of me. Cheerfully I endorse the medicine that did this for me."

Does not this prove that Konjola is the medicine to take when results, quick and thorough, are wanted?

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold also by all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Let Normalcy on Exchange Be Example

—By B. C. FORBES—

THE New York Stock Exchange this week resumes its normal hours of business.

Return to normalcy throughout the whole country is all that is needed to preserve reasonable prosperity.

HAPPILY American employers as a whole enter the final month of the year in hopeful mood. They are not drastically curtailing operations and throwing countless workers idle—as was usually the case after other upheavals.

They have pledged themselves to resist another customary post-panic move, namely, cutting wages. They have manifested an admirable spirit in response to President Hoover's recommendations.

IF American families all over the land simply will go about their daily earning and spending in a normal way, 1930 should open promisingly.

ONE fruit of recent events should be closer co-operation between Washington and business, and closer co-operation among industrial groups, with a view to strengthening our economic position by harmonious efforts to remove obstacles to lasting prosperity.

For example, various governmental bodies have braked the wheels of progress by holding up for months, and in some cases years, eagerly awaited decisions vitally affecting business progress.

The interstate commerce commission has been perhaps the most flagrant offender. Nine years have passed since the Transportation act became law. Yet very poor progress has been made toward carrying its provisions into actual effect. Month after month and year after year have been frittered away without arriving at one major decision on the far-reaching railway consolidation plans covering the eastern half of the country.

The prolonged period of doubt naturally has kept railway managements guessing, unable to go ahead with important plans until they know exactly what the future has in store for their systems.

Now that even Congress has become aroused to the necessity for prompt, co-operative action calculated to encourage industry, as witness its attitude towards income tax reductions, is it too late to hope that the interstate commerce commission will be spurred into action without further unconscionable procrastination?

PERHAPS the nation's oil leaders also will be stimulated to adopt a more effective policy on over-production when they meet in annual session at Chicago this week.

The history of the oil industry—America's and the whole world's—has not been flattering to the common sense of those at its head. With perhaps the exception of timber, no basic industry has ever indulged in such criminal wastefulness. Not even the steel industry in its worst days of cut-throat competition gave a more sorry exhibition.

It is high time, not only for the sake of the oil industry itself and its millions of stockholders, but in the interest of national safety, that saner counsels prevail and saner policies be instituted forthwith.

REPORTS concerning holiday retail buying are mixed. Some describe business as quite equal to a year ago; others admit quieter demand. This, perhaps is as much as could be expected.

ONE phase of recent security market happenings has not received the notice it deserves. The Cities Service group of companies has announced an INCREASE of some 50,000 in its total number of shareholders since the market collapse began. Martin J. Insull informs me that the buying of small lots of Insull Utility shares has reached amazing proportions. Several other large corporations have had a similar experience. And it is well known that the Stock Exchange firms which specialize in odd lots have been swamped with orders all through the decline.

These facts should be taken into the reckoning when the statement is glibly made that "millions" of small stockholders have been wiped out and that demoralization in prices has been taken advantage of only by the Rockefellers and other rich individuals and institutions. Apparently many persons of moderate means were foreseeing enough to resist being drawn into the speculative orgy during the boom and wise enough to pick up investment stocks at panic quotations.

That is at least some consolation.

Stock Exchange Topics

Dividend Continuance by U. S. Leather Is Held Unlikely.

WITH only a month to go and based on what has taken place thus far this year, it is believed unlikely that directors will continue payment of dividends on class A stock of U. S. Leather Company on which a $4 dividend was paid quarterly this year from 1928 income. Action on this dividend is scheduled for sometime this month. For the first nine months this year U. S. Leather reported net loss of $1,820,829 after all charges including inventory adjustments. A profit of $148,609 after charges was shown in three months ended September 30 last, the first since the quarter ended September 30, 1928. Taking into account dividends paid on the participating preference stock in the nine months this year, there was a deficit of about $2,650,000.

About the only unfavorable feature entering into the situation in the interval since the stock exchange closed on Wednesday was the continued talk about the copper trade and the repeated statements of the possibility of a reduction in the price of copper. Many of those fully informed about the trade position, however, insist that the situation is in control and that the market for the metal will be stabilized by the steps taken to restrict production. Generally this restriction is expected to reduce the current output of copper by 20 to 25 per cent and much of the present output is being taken care of by the continued large sales of export copper at 18.30 cents. The small supplies of custom copper coming from outside the large producers is finding enough demand to permit distribution from this source without disturbing the price. Those who are fully advised about the outlook, expect that in a short time the various measures included in the Hoover program, must bring in a new inquiry for the metal, chiefly for power transmission, which will make an essential change in trade conditions.

SOME copper shares are selling where they were when the metal was quoted around 13 and 13½ cents, notwithstanding millions of dollars added to the value of many properties from earnings over the last several years. At present prices dividends could be halved and the return would be as large as it was when some copper stocks were selling around peak prices. Calumet and Arizona pays $10 a share and sells around 85, a yield of nearly 12 per cent. It sold as high as 136¾ a share this year.

Simms Petroleum Company earnings for the closing quarter of the year will reflect the profits on the recent sale of a half interest in 480 acres in Pecos County, Texas, for $500,000 to the Landreth Production Company, it was announced. This acreage was acquired by Simms at a nominal figure prior to the extensive development in Pecos County, now one of the country's largest flush producing areas. Net earnings after all charges for the first 9 months of the year were $1,306,634, equivalent to $1.55 a share. Of this $1.06 per share was earned in the third quarter. Earnings for the fourth quarter should be equal to but not in excess of those for the preceding quarter at the current rate of operations.

TRADING is highly professional at the moment, and the disposition among those doing the bulk of the business in the course of a day is to follow the line of least resistance, and similarly to accept small profits when they are available on either side. As one observer remarked today, "There is more scalping going on just now than has been seen in many a long month." This is probably a profitable procedure for floor traders, but when a board room trader attempts to follow suit he must allow for the brokers' commission and with the market moving in an unusually narrow range the net profit in his case would hardly be sufficient to warrant the risk.

BOND MARKETS' PROSPECTS IMPROVE

Mortgage Paper Expected To Have First Call When Year-End Money Is Placed

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The bond market moves into the last month of the year with prices on an upward swing. Observers are predicting that only unforeseen contingencies can prevent this tendency from gaining momentum and that strong market will develop in 1930.

Several factors are expected to assist in the improvement which got under way early in October. The usual reinvestment demand appearing at the first of the year, it is anticipated, will take substantially more bonds than in early 1929, when much of the capital liberated by interest and dividend payments and by shifting of investment programs was placed in stocks. Insurance companies have been substantial buyers of shares, but an extensive inquiry for bonds from these large investors is looked for. In addition, with money rates below the yields still available in fixed income securities of good grade, corporations as well as banks would naturally look to bonds, especially those of short maturities.

FIRM TONE LAST WEEK

Trading was rather dull last week, with only three trading sessions, but the entire list manifested distinct firmness. Liquidation was noted here and there as holders took losses for purposes of the income tax return. However, this selling was small and brought out only minor declines, although it served to give the list superficial irregularity.

Despite the losses coincident with the stock break, the combined bond average rose approximately a point in November and is now some two points below its 1929 high, established early in the year.

New bond financing continued light, chiefly because of the short week, totaling only $15,706,000, against $26,913,000 the week before and $60,999,000 a year ago.

Montgomery Ward Sales Set Record

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Montgomery Ward & Co. reports sales for November of $29,851,303, an increase of $4,395,197, or 17.27 per cent, over same 1928 month. November sales were largest of any November in the company's history.

For 11 months sales were $255,731,305, an increase of $55,328,387, or 27.61 per cent, over the same 1928 period.

President Everitt said: "We expect to continue opening additional stores in our retail chain, as we feel that retail business will continue to be satisfactory. So far as our mail order business is concerned, we are reasonably optimistic as to the outlook because our recent surveys indicate an extremely favorable agricultural condition, which, of course, reflects itself in the farmers' buying power.

"We fully expect that December will also prove a good business month, due largely, of course, to Christmas buying, and we have made quite elaborate preperation in all of our stores."

Woolworth Profit Estimated at $3.90

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—While no definite figures are available, some quarters close to the affairs of the F. W. Woolworth Company estimated that the company's profits for the current year will approximate $37,500,000, equal to nearly $3.90 a share on 9,750,000 common capital shares now outstanding. This estimate assumes that Woolworth's sales for 1929 will total about $305,000,000 and that last year's ratio of profits to sales of 12.32 per cent will be maintained this year. This would compare with net income last year of $35,387,606, equal to $9.07 a share on 3,900,000 shares then outstanding, or to $3.63 a share on the present capital basis.

Bank Pool's Stock Not Yet Sold Out

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The banking pool, formed during the recent crisis in the securities markets by a group of leading New York bankers, has not yet liquidated its holdings, according to the monthly economic survey of the National City Bank. It is not expected that the loss, if any, will be large when the stocks held are finally sold.

WORLD'S WHEAT SUPPLY OFF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—World supplies of wheat for the current season appear to be from 300,000,000 to 350,000,000 bushels below supplies of the 1928-29 season, according to quarterly wheat review made public by the grain division of the Department of Agriculture.

A new high record was established for stocks of wheat available at the beginning of November. On November 1 it was estimated there were 562,964,000 bushels available, as against the large stocks of 507,000,000 bushels on October 1 and the preceding record stocks of 490,000,000 bushels on November 1, 1928, which, however, included the accumulation of over 180,000,000 bushels of wheat in store in southern hemisphere countries, mostly in Australia, as a result of the interruption to shipping during war years.

"The sharp downward trend of world wheat markets from the relatively high levels prevailing at August 1 may be attributed largely to the unusually dull European inquiry for foreign wheats, reflecting the shift in the location of world supplies during the current season," the review stated.

California Crude Production Higher

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2.—California crude oil production in the week ended November 30 averaged 704,450 barrels daily, an increase of 10,500 barrels daily over the preceding week.

If your car could sing you'd hear it pleading—

"Don't oil me in December as you did in May!"

IN fairness to the maker of your car, follow his recommendations and advice. The oil and grease which served so well during the torrid days of summer won't keep your car running so sweetly now that there's a real chill in the air. It's high time to change to lighter grades of AMOCO Motor Oils and Greases!

Consult the man at your filling station. He has a chart which prescribes the correct grade for your car during the winter months--a grade agreed on by the engineering staff of the factory which built your car and by the technical staff of The American Oil Company. Have your crank case thoroughly cleaned--have the correct grade of AMOCO Motor Oil supplied--and face the winter with a car ready to deliver its best efforts!

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Head Down — Local Market Narrow

STOCK MARKET AGAIN HEADS DOWNWARD

Sporadic Outbursts of Buying Checked When Pressure Is Renewed

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The line of least resistance in today's stock market was again downward. Sporadic outbursts of buying took place in a selected assortment of tobacco, public utility, railroad and chemical shares, but these were checked when professional selling pressure was renewed against U. S. Steel common and several of the other so-called pivotal industrials. Trading was relatively light in volume.

The day's business news was mixed in character. A series of increased and extra dividends by small companies was offset by reports of a further decline in steel mill operations in the midwest to about 50 per cent of capacity, and reports of a further falling off in sales of some of the large automobile manufacturers.

The announcement of a large capital expenditure program by the railroad and public utility companies for 1930 apparently has failed to stimulate much of a demand for the stocks of companies likely to profit by this increased business.

LOAN TOTAL LOW

The further decline of $137,000,000 in Federal Reserve brokers' loans last week brought the total down to the lowest level since November, 1927. Thus eight weeks of deflation have more than wiped out the gains of the preceding two years. Credit conditions continue relatively easy. Call money renewed at 4½ per cent, and appeared to be in fairly plentiful supply at that figure.

Columbian Carbon was the spectacular individual feature in today's market, running up nearly 20 points on what appeared to be the retreat of an overcrowded short interest.

Early in the session, a good demand also developed for the Western Maryland issues, Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies, American Tobacco issues, Simmons Company, Allied Chemical and U. S. Industrial Alcohol, but the buying died out when weakness cropped out in other sections of the list.

LOSSES RECORDED

J. I. Case and General Electric canceled their early gains of 5¼ and 3 points, respectively, the latter selling down to 212, or 3½ points below last week's close, before it met effective buying support. Anaconda Wire Cable broke 6 points to a new 1929 low at 49⅝.

American Telephone, Detroit Edison, Fox Film, Loews and Union Pacific sold down 4½ to 6½ points and Atchison, Pennsylvania, Electric Auto Lite and U. S. Steel common sold down 3 points or more, the last-named touching 159¼, or within 10 points of the low price reached in last month's break.

Weakness of Steel, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Johns-Manville, Dupont and Anaconda was attributed to a resumption of "bear" attacks by professional operators who have been hammering the market since the beginning of last week.

Season's Iron Ore Shipments Larger

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2.—Iron ore shipments from upper lake ports for the month of November amounted to 3,941,524 tons, as compared with 4,260,943 tons for same month last year.

Ore shipments for the 11 months were greater than any total for the past 10 full seasons. Total shipments to December 1 amounted to 65,195,478 tons, as compared with 53,980,874 tons for the same 1928 period.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 2.—Wheat was due 1⅝ to 1¾ pence up. Opened ⅝ to ¾ penny up and at 1:20 p. m. was ¾ penny up.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅛ penny lower.

Visible Grain Supply.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat, decreased 2,179,000; corn, increased 848,000; oats, decreased 71,000; rye, decreased 95,000; barley, increased 114,000.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The curb market was submitted to further selling pressure as operations were resumed toda after the four-day suspension. Trading, however, continued at the reduced rate of last week, and turned particularly dull on declines. Losses were for the most part moderate. The list showed considerable resistance and tended to rally at times.

There was little in the news over the week-end to influence the price trend, and traders generally preferred to stand aside until the course of the market, now that the November storms of liquidation have passed, becomes clearer. Several more extra or increased dividends were announced, but few affected the more active stocks on this market.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

HOOVER'S PLAN LONG URGED BY ECONOMISTS

Orderly Process of Business May Be Stimulated by Intelligent Federal Support

By MERRYLL STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. Under the leadership of President Herbert Hoover, nature is imitating art at Washington.

Truth — reality — is taking leaves out of the book of fiction. The Chief Executive's magnificent economic experiment in smoothing the business cycle puts to the test the are long dreams of of modern school of economists. The proposed permanent business council which it is expected will be formed as a result of next Thursday's industrial conference at the headquarters of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States resembles the federal boards advocated by Waddill Catchings, investment banker and William T. Foster, well known economist and head of the Pollak Foundation, in their book, "The Road to Plenty."

According to these economists, the board should first of all gather and collate data concerning the trend in business.

"The government" the authors insisted "must take all the assembled information into account in all its own fiscal decisions."

LEADERSHIP GIVEN

"In doing so, the government will afford the necessary leadership to private business. At times, of course the initiative of individuals will be sufficient; but at other times it will not. Private concerns may not dare to act alone; may not even be able to act alone. Relying on the individual initiative is relying on chaos.

"The next question concerns the functioning of the new board. To my mind its first function should be to make reports of its findings concerning business conditions. In order to exercise its leadership effectively, the board must make frequent clear, public statements of its acts, its proposed acts, and the reasons therefor. The second function of the board is to advise the government. The board should inform the President, Congress and the various departments from time to time, of the probable effect on economic welfare, in view of existing operations, of taxes, tax rebates, refunding operations, payment of public debts, increases of wages and salaries and other fiscal matters.

"Imagine what would happen if the United States government announced its determination to use all its fiscal operations, as far as feasible, during the next 12 months, in order to achieve the purposes of our plan. Just think of it! At once, business men everywhere would expect that business would be good—little danger of inflation or deflation; just an orderly market, keeping up with production. The result would be the most marked forging ahead of business that any country has ever known."

On second sober thought, men of business who attended the recent prosperity conferences in Washington have indicated privately that they think one of the chief gains has been in identifying government for the first time with the constructive aims of business. The maturity of this new policy will automatically release a considerable amount of work. For example the inordinate delay on the part of the Interstate Commerce Commission dealing with the question of railroad mergers has retarded numerous plans for railroad construction and development. Likewise, the hostile attitude of the Federal government to certain programs of the power companies has held back plans for expansion. The new policy of interchanging ideas as to the business consequences of governmental attitudes should of course not result in a surrender by government to private business, but any mutually satisfactory policy would enable business to go forward, whereas the existing uncertainty contributes to stagnation.

Another second thought which some delegates bring back is the fear that the business public may expect beneficent results from the Hoover program too soon. They point out that even if the President gets perfect co-operation all around, the fawcets of prosperity and employment cannot be turned on immediately. There is always a lag in business between the time decisions are made, and the time when they are carried out, being translated into orders for material and employment for men. It is recognized that the new projects recently pledged will result in activity beginning in the latter part of the winter, rather than next week.

SITUATION EASED

Of course, for the transitional period, the situation will be relieved somewhat by the announcement by the railroads and other companies that they would go ahead with the original developmental program scheduled before the Wall Street crash.

The real turn in the business situation came in July when commodity prices started a decline which has amounted to 7 per cent. July was the ideal time for beginning to apply remedial measures. The current recession in freight car loadings and in power consumption merely reflects the effect of causes which then became operative. Before the beneficent effect of the new program becomes visible in trade statistics, there will be further statistical evidence of the water that has already passed under the bridge.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Substantial buying orders boosted bond prices throughout the entire list today. Trading was active in high grade corporate mortgages and although inquiry centered in the rails the demand for industrials and utilities of investment caliber increased.

Time money returned to quotations of 4½ - 4¾ per cent for all maturities against 4¼-5 last Wednesday, when the market closed for the remainder of the week. With brokers loans down another $137,000,000 and money in plentiful supply for both call and time loans, even lower rates seemed in prospect. Dealers reported increased inquiry from large corporations which are no longer putting funds into the call market.

Farm Prices Aid Business Stability

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Producers of potatoes, dairy products, cattle and poultry are in a relatively strong production and marketing position which forms a substantial element of stability in the general business situation, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics declared in its December report.

"The crash in the securities markets," the bureau declared in part, "has had some temporary effect upon prices of grains, cotton and butter, but prices of several important agricultural products are higher than they were at this time a year ago. The crop output as a whole is not up to last year's, but is only slightly below the 10-year average."

13 Ocean Mail Routes Certified

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Ocean mail routes over 13 seas lanes have been certified by the Postoffice Department, with a statement from Postmaster General Brown to the effect that speed of ships required on the routes should equal that of any ships of foreign registry which might operate in competition. The Postoffice Department is expected to proceed immediately with advertisement of the routes.

October Electric Output Sets Record

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Production of electric power by public utility power plants in the United States during October totaled 8,685,131,000 kilowatt hours, against 8,060,000,000 kilowatt hours produced in September, according to geological survey.

Both the monthly total and average daily production during October exceeded all previous records.

Fireproofing Sales Total $1,100,000

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 2.—November sales of the General Fireproofing Company, this city, totaled $1,100,000, established a new monthly record for all time. The company is ready to begin operating a new department for the manufacture of aluminum office chairs, which will add 300 to its payroll.

Can Companies Expect Record Year

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

UNINTERRUPTED expansion in the use of cans for packing foods is making it possible for the two leaders in the business to show record profits. Both American Can Company and Continental Can Company will earn one-third more net profit this year than in 1928.

Both companies had exceptionally good years in 1925 followed by moderate depressions in 1926. Continental has reported an increase in net profits in each year since 1926. Both companies showed substantial gains in earnings last year when profits were far better than in 1925.

The big gains shown in the use of tin plate containers last year contributed materially to the profits of some companies in this district such as McKeesport Tin Plate Company and American Sheet and Tin Plate. The tin plate mills in this district worked close to capacity from early this year to a few weeks ago supplying the can companies with their needs for the 1929 packs.

The Weather Factor

WHILE the use of tin cans has been steadily increasing, the can companies are, to some extent, at the mercy of weather conditions. The size of available crops is the deciding factor in the business of each year. The recent growth of the industry has, however, materially lessened the elements of risk by increasing the number of foods packed and the geographical area served by the industry.

In the present year the pack of fruits in California was materially curtailed by damaging frosts and droughts affected other parts of the country. But in spite of this the profits of the can companies have been ahead of last year. Increased packs of other products have made up for the loss. On the west coast there was an exceptionally heavy pack of fish and the demand for cans for other purposes was heavy.

American Can

IN the present year American Can is expected to earn about $25,000,000 after all charges. This would be equivalent to $9 a share on the common stock after deducting preferred dividends. Had it not been for the smaller fruit and vegetable crops, profits would have reached about $11 a share.

Profits of the present year compare with $19,863,326, or $6.86 a share earned on the common in 1928, and with $13,055,199, or $4.11 a share in 1927.

After spending $54,000,000 over a 10-year period for new construction, the company had physical properties carried at $121,090,000 at the close of 1928. There was no funded debt. The capitalization consisted of $41,233,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock and 2,473,998 shares of common stock.

The company recently paid an extra dividend of $1 a share on the common which is on a $4 regular annual dividend basis. American Can is an exceptionally rich company with current assets of $59,995,000 against current liabilities of $16,142,000.

Continental Can

CONTINENTAL CAN in the first nine months of this year earned 38 per cent more than in the corresponding period of 1928, according to official statements. October showed further improvement. Assuming that this rate of increase will continue for the balance of the year net profits would be in the vicinity of $9,200,000, or about $5.50 a share on the 1,613,000 shares of common stock outstanding at present.

In 1928 net profit was $6,690,796, or $4.35 a share on the capitalization at that time. In 1927 net profit was $4,438,646. All of the outstanding preferred stock has been called for redemption on January 15. This will leave the common stock as the only claim on profits.

Continental Can has materially expanded its business during the past two years by the acquisition of a large number of other makers of cans. Recently arrangements were made for a consolidation with the Owens-Illinois Glass Company which would have strengthened the company's position by giving it production of both glass and tin plate containers. The consolidation was prevented, however, by the collapse in the stock market. It is generally believed that attempts will be made to complete the merger when conditions again return to a satisfactory basis.

Many Sign Coupons Urging Tax Cut on Incomes

Responding to the appeal in the Pittsburgh Sunday Sun-Telegraph many persons today are sending in signatures to petitions for the revision downward of the federal tax on earned incomes. The signers represent people in all walks of life who object to the present tax system as unfair and economically unsound.

Petitions, including the resolution addressed to administration officials and Congress, may be signed and sent to the Income Tax Department, Sun-Telegraph. These are forwarded immediately to the Washington authorities. Many readers of the Sun-Telegraph canvassed their friends and neighbors and sent many names on a strip of paper pasted underneath the clipped coupon. Names of the signers are not published.

In order to present the greatest possible number of petitions to Congress when it takes up the question of revenues at the session which convenes today, speed in return of the coupons is urged. The resolution follows:

To His Excellency, the President of the United States of America;

To His Excellency, the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States of America;

To the Honorable, the Congress of the United States of America:

Whereas, the earned income of an individual is derived from his labor and creative faculties, which are subject to rigid limitations, fluctuations and serious depreciation, while the income from property is a permanent and stable income, it seems inequitable to tax earned incomes on the same basis as incomes from property and invested capital without taking depreciation into consideration; and

Whereas, an earned income is the measure of value of services rendered by the worker to the community and an unearned income is the measure of value of the protection and other benefits received by an individual of the community; and

Whereas, to tax earned incomes heavily is to penalize thrift and industry and is a direct tax on labor and tends to retard enterprise and achievement, therefore

Be it resolved, that we, the undersigned, call these facts to the attention of the President, the Secretary of the Treasury and Congress, in order to secure a reduction of 50 per cent in the tax rate on earned incomes below the tax rate on unearned incomes.

Things I Could See and Hear Again

THE "Give Me A Primitive Man" song by Cole Porter in the amusing "Fifty Million Frenchmen" show in the Lyric, as the fascinating Evelyn Hoey delivers it. And Helen Broderick's comedy.

Ukulele Ike's song styles before he got "in the money."

Evelyn Laye of "Bitter Sweet" in the Ziegfeld. The way she sings. The way she smiles. The way she cries. The way she walks. The way she talks. The way she dances and the way she has with her.

Tamara Geva's toe-dancing in the "Whoopee" finale.

The "Green Hillside" number in Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book."

The Woodrow Wilson chapter in Wm. Bolitho's "Twelve Against the Gods" book, published by Simon & Schuster.

THAT bouncy episode in "Strictly Dishonorable" a classic.

That scene in "June Moon" when Jean Dixon, as the fed-up wife of the song-writer, looks at him venomously for two minutes.

The first and second "Baffle Books" (Crime Clubs), which keep you up all night trying to solve the problems.

The original version of "The Cock-eyed World."

CARELESS OLD TED

TED LEWIS singing "When My Baby Smiles At Me" with his seedy looking high hat cocked over his right eye, and his clarineting.

Any part of the "Sons o' Guns" show in the Imperial. ("Carry On," former title.)

Siegfried Rumann, the German Lieutenant, in "The "Channel Road" in the Plymouth Theater. His pretending is a high spot.

George Olsen's recording of "Who?" from "Sunny."

Ruth Etting in the Casanova Club, double-tempoing the chorus of "Right Kind of Man," and her plaintive song styles.

Charles Butterworth in "Sweet Adeline" and Irene Franklin's first-act finale shriek-provoker, in the same hit.

The scene in "Gambling" in the Fulton Theater, where George M. Cohan matches wits with Mary Phillips on the settee. A pippin.

The touching finale of "Berkeley Square" in the Lyceum.

FIGHTER FIGHTS ON

THE thrilling and unexpected ending at Madison Square Garden the night Al Singer laced Young Zazzarino, who, when the encounter was stopped, began punching the referee, and then wept like a child.

Beulah Bondi's first-rate playing in "Street Scene."

Louis Armstrong's horn-tooting and warbling of "Ain't Misbehavin'" from the pit during the "Hot Chocolates" intermission.

That three-note motif from "The Birth of a Nation."

"The Cohan Review" of 1916 . . . The "Ziegfeld Follies" of 1922 . . . The first "Garrick Gaities" . . . The original "Charlot Review" . . . and the 1927 "Scandals."

And Montgomery Ward at 146.

Preliminary Work Starts on Highway

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 2.—Winter is not holding up changes in the National Pike, west of here. Preliminary work is progressing steadily. The State Highway Department will eliminate Sugar Hill, one of the steepest, just west of this city; reduce the grade of Rosemire hill, about seven miles west, and Coon Island hill, three miles west of Claysville.

Relocation of several miles would detour traffic through the southwestern part of this city if decided on.

6 Killed by Bomb In Mexican Store

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—A dispatch to El Universal from Tlaxcala City said the merchant Severiana Flores and his five sons were killed by a bomb which an unidentified man tossed into his store at Tepeyanco, in the state of Tlaxcala. Several other persons were injured.

The dispatch said police had been unable to learn the reason for the bombing. The explosive was thrown by one of a group of men who fled as it exploded. The family lived in the store.

Mexico City Hit By Cold Wave, Hail

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The cold wave which has been felt in so many parts of the United States reached here yesterday and the mercury suddenly dropped to 50 degrees. A severe hail storm for an hour whitened the streets and the ice pellets lay two inches deep in many places.

Caterpillars Show Signs of Early Winter

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 2.—Mountain residents, who make their weather predictions from various "signs," declare the caterpillar shows the hardest part of the season is coming early this year.

This is indicated, they say, by a heavy black stripe which begins at the head, while the balance of the body is light brown. Black stripes on a caterpillar's body, they aver, indicate cold seasons.

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

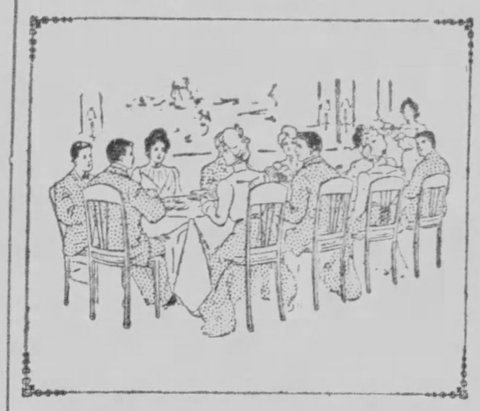
RUTH BLIND TO PIT THAT YAWNS IN HER PATH

Note—We are studying the sad case of Ruth Willmore, Michigan Beauty, as recorded in "Palaces of Sin," an indignant indictment of Washington Society as it existed at the turn of the century.

LAST week we left Ruth Willmore in the dining room. She had entered on her uncle's arm—and all eyes surveyed her approvingly. What thoughts were in the author's mind as he beheld this girl sit down and partake of her first meal at the nation's capital?



"My conscience lashed me," he writes, "for not warning the congressman what would befall his niece, did he not watch her day and night, but alas. I procrastinated, and this girl who came to Washington as innocent and pure as the rose which clambered up the walls of her humble Michigan home, was sacrificed to the maw of what we call 'Elegant Society,' while in fact it is only a band of devils, both male and female, seeking whom they may devour . . ."

Little does Ruth Willmore comprehend the pit that yawns in her path when, in a day or so—

Forney Is Fortunate In Continuing Fiasco

Judge James B. Drew, indignant because bail was accepted for the court appearance of Alfred W. Forney, slot machine magnate, when he suddenly appeared in the office of the district attorney nine months after he had jumped another bail bond, said the place for the man is IN JAIL.

The public will commend Judge Drew's attitude. The idea of accepting bail from a man who has been so brazen in his flouting of the law appears to the average citizen as ridiculous. The fact is that Forney stands now as one who virtually insulted the court by failing to appear at the time of his trial and claiming he was ill in a hotel in New York, when, as a matter of fact, he left the hotel immediately after sending the message. He betrayed the court and he betrayed his attorney, who presented Forney's excuse.

That this man should now be free on bail, because the court has not chosen to punish him for contempt, possibly is gratifying to Forney's friends, but is NOT to the rest of the community.

Developments in this case will be watched with increasing interest by thoughtful citizens.

When Cold Comes Death Is Not Very Far Away

Sympathy of the community is extended to the Duquesne Heights parents, two of whose children were burned to death as a direct result of the severe cold spell that grasped the district, their home catching fire from an overheated stove. At the same time it is again made aware that death not from cold itself always is the shadow behind an extreme drop in temperature.

It is then that poisonous gas from automobile exhausts takes victims among those who start cars in closed garages. It is then that children dress in the warmth of open stoves and grates and their clothing ignites. It is then that gas in some districts is low when the throttle is wide open in the early part of the evening, coming on with a rush later when the draft caused by cooking and a desire for extra warmth is reduced.

Whenever the cold makes its demand for extra heat special care always must be taken to see that the element of safety is not neglected.

Innocent Dime Novels

Crimes Were Blamed on Them.

Sixty-nine years ago the first dime novel was published by Erastus Flavel Beadle. These paper backed fiction stories were sent in bales to the soldiers in the Civil War. Five million copies were sold in four years, and soon Beadle was paying as high of $750 for a story. He had a fellow working for him—George Munro—who patiently tied up bundles and observed Beadle's methods. Then Munro went into business, published the five-cent yellow backs, including the "Old Sleuth" series of fond memory, and when Munro died he had amassed a fortune of $10,000,000, which was $7,000,000 more than Beadle made.

Finally the reformers decided that the tattered adventure stories, with their exciting cover pictures, were responsible for all crime. The five and ten-cent novels fell into disrepute, and finally expired. Now libraries seek specimen copies, and Dr. Frank P. O'Brien spent 30 years getting together a collection which is receiving considerable research attention. The verdict, after careful consideration, is that the maligned dime novel was innocent of most of the charges brought against it. Beadle hired authors who wrote in the tradition of Scott and Cooper—and the stuff was highly moral. All of the above is based on a study by Edmund Pearson, whose book, "Dime Novels," has recently been published.

In this day and age it is convenient to blame all crime on the motion picture—just as our grandparents found it handy to accuse the dime novel for all irregular misbehavior. There is always a tendency to blame a simple cause for complex results. Unfortunately, causes are usually as complex as results.

Cities of Tomorrow

Frenchman Has Interesting Ideas.

Unfortunately none of us will be able to remain for the interesting experiments of the future, when cities are planned and built to completely comply with the necessities of a mechanical age. Our cities are having a difficult time meeting the ever-increasing congestion brought about by rapid transportation. The skyscraper is, of course, the one attempt to conform to the new age. But skyscrapers, huddled together, increase congestion. So many people have to get in and out of skyscrapers each day.

Now comes the Frenchman, Le Corbusier, with his interesting speculation on the intelligently planned metropolis of the future. We will build into the air, he believes, but our buildings must be scattered—spaced. People will live in or near skyscrapers. We must, above all, beware of dullness—the danger of living in narrow cells. He believes careless, ragged building in our temporary cities today more of a peril to sanity and peace of mind than the colossal mechanical program he advocates. He would, above all, provide terraces, theaters, shops and convenient geometrical ledges, from which the geometric creatures of the future may watch the geometric spectacle of life about them.

Theaters would be placed in lovely gardens. There would be proper space around each skyscraper, to eliminate the eternal crowding and jostling. Air and light must be provided. Perhaps this speculation is needless. Before we can get around to building a mechanical paradise in which to exist, we may all be killed off by traffic fumes.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Another Load of Harmony

ALL is quiet delirium along the Potomac this fading twilight and only man is vile.

Senator Moses feted his campaign committee and canvassed the situation like a boat's sailmaker sewing up the remains of a dead but gentle pirate.

"Bugs" Baer

The Young Guard threatened to hurdle the reservation when Moses classified the sons of the West as wild jackasses But a primary patriarch feels naught but benevolent scorn for political sprigs who have not yet reached the age of investigation.

To kick a long story sideways, the goodly Senator has turned a formfitting tornado into a tidal wave in a saucer.

"We are knee-deep in harmony," said the spokesman of the huddle, adjusting his rubber boots.

His words dropped as soothingly as leaves on the babes in the woods. A modern Moses strikes the rock and applesauce gushes forth.

There should be no body squeaks in a well-oiled speech. The tongue is never collateral for the brain. Therefore, the sons-of-wild-jackasses speech goes down in history among the other great orations through a hat.

The Young Guard is not the son of a capering mule. In his second and more intelligent speech, Senator Moses refused to define the exact relationship.

There is many a slip between the lip and the retraction. As the Senator adjusted his bifocals he saw that he was mistaken in his diagnosis.

After all, a young Senator is still a Senator, even from the West. Every state is allowed two of these valuable objects for exportation.

When seated in a strategic position between the waste baskets and their endowed desks, they read very nicely from left to right. And, after a session in the government concentration camp, they learn the futility of trying to tune out when an ancient spellbinder is all over the dial.

It's an ill second wind that blows nobody some good. The Democrats were hopeful about the Republican rift.

But even though the G. O. P. may wash its linen in public, it never reaches the fraternal stage where it shakes its tablecloth out of the window.

The crumbs have been carefully gathered together and we'll have bread pudding tomorrow. The harmony dinner was a success from soup to snubs.

When Senator Moses says he is knee-deep in harmony he ain't standing in a hole intended for a fence-post. He is in the huge crater blasted by his canceled speech and the sons of the wild jackasses are back in the herd.

Harmony ... again. You cannot expect blueprints and specifications with the peace that passeth all understanding.

THE JOKER

By Herbert Kaufman

ONE by one, France had played her trumps, and LOST—until there were no ACES left to lead. Then she reached for the discard and drew—the Joker.

Once more, her die seemed cast and the moment arrived for the traditional maid or youth to snatch her fortunes from the slavering jaws of defeat.

But no Jeanne Hachette or Jeanne D'Arc appeared to re-temper the sword of victory.

Martel failed Chalons—no reincarnation of Henry of Navarre burst from the tomb—Rosney slept on—and all the prayers of the nation could not evoke ANOTHER Little Corporal.

Instead of an Amazon, a miracle monger or a captain of audacity, a shaggy runt of a man—a misfire in politics, and a dabbler in journalism for 70 odd years—emerged from obscurity and repudiation to seize the tattering oriflamme of France and wave her retreating hosts back to triumph.

THE crisis called for Hercules. And a gnarled dwarf, who had never signally succeeded at a single labor to which he had hitherto set himself, answered.

Let us reset the scene. Precedent had confessed bankruptcy. A seemingly invincible enemy, warring with unexpected weapons, employing new strategies and hourly confounding counter thrusts with dumfounding resources, had invested the very environs of Paris.

Like the Iron Woman of Heidelberg, implacable cordons advancing from North and East, had already crushed Flanders and Burgundy.

France's sun was setting upon a German helmet spike and fast disappearing into the maw of conquest, when Clemenceau's belated hour struck.

HE had eaten his allotted three score and ten years of chagrin and rebuff. Popular opinion had retired him from action.

The Tiger was too old to bite; time had dulled his fangs and the precarious journals from which he intermittently growled at this Cabinet and that—at these notables and those—roused tolerant amusement oftener than effective fervors.

But desperation cannot afford to quibble at instruments of salvation. And France at bay, without a Jeanne D'Arc, or a Henry Fourth—without a spark of genius among her younger statesmen and without a Bonaparte among her cadets, in her extremity DARED to play the Joker—and WON.

He was 76 years old, remember that. He had missed his goals at 40, at 50, at 60, remember THAT.

Important achievement had left him no CREDENTIALS; but neither time nor an empty scorecard could browbeat Clemenceau's self-confidence.

HE still BELIEVED in himself.

He KNEW that he knew WHAT to do and HOW to do it. He bided his chance and it came.

He refused to discount the ELEVENTH hour; he didn't subscribe to Osler's theory of obsolescence at 50 or let the frosts that had nipped his head, nip his HEELS or HOPES but marched unflinchingly on to his appointed rendezvous with duty.

He wasn't a QUITTER and so he became an IMMORTAL.

He decided what he wanted, he wanted it HARD enough and he finally got it.

Hang his picture on your wall, beside the calendar, to remind you that opportunity has no deadlines or age limits.

And when fool balance sheets cast speculative eyes upon YOUR job, find courage in the thought of the man who never found it TOO LATE to make good.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

A TREMENDOUS thing, that new "rocket plane." Did you read about it? They estimate that, when perfected, it could circle the globe in about 30 hours! Whew! Takes one's breath away, doesn't it? But we'll probably do it . . . if not on rockets, by some other form of whiz-bang. Nothing's impossible, any more.

A marvelous age! Think of the time, just when we were kids, when it took an hour to buggy-ride seven miles to the next town and a week for a letter to cross the continent. Remember the thrill you got when they wired the house for 'lectricity and you didn't have to clean the oil lamps any more? Oh, lady, wasn't that a relief! Remember, too, how stuck up you were because you had the first phone in town n' how all the kids came in and tried it and almost drove your mother mad? The wonder of it . . . to think you could actually talk to Minnie Tarbox, six whole blocks away! And what a miracle the first phonograph was . . . n' how everyone said the movies were just freaks that wouldn't last?

Just yesterday, that was . . . and now time is nothing and distance has been wiped off the map. We hop from San Francisco to New York for week-ends . . . we talk to London as easily as we yell out the window to Jimmy . . . we pick anyone's voice out of any old air and, sitting in Huston, we can watch 'em chewing blubber at the North Pole.

A miracle age and how we like to boast about it. . . . just as if we'd invented it all ourselves. BUT, ACTUALLY, IT DOESN'T DO US A DARNED BIT OF GOOD UNLESS WE CAN DUPLICATE THOSE MIRACLES IN OUR OWN LIVES.

You may circle the world in 30 hours, but still you aren't getting anywhere UNLESS YOUR IMAGINATION CAN GO FAR AS THAT AEROPLANE. If your imagination stays at home in Brownville, wondering about the price of potatoes, or the latest neighborhood gossip, you might as well not be moving.

You may use radios, television, and long distance phones, BUT UNLESS YOUR INTERESTS AND SYMPATHIES ARE ALSO LONG DISTANCE, SUCH CONTRAPTIONS WON'T DO YOU ANY REAL GOOD. They may help your business, but they won't increase, by any iota, the boundaries of your soul.

Machines can transport your body, fill your ears with sound and your eyes with sights. But they can't change your life. YOU'RE AS FAST AS YOU FEEL AND AS FAR AS YOU THINK. If you feel that "all foreigners are funny" . . . if you can't understand anyone who doesn't belong to your own church or your own town . . . if you hate to change and are afraid to take a chance . . . then, take it from me, neighbor, you're neither FAST nor FAR in spite of all these time and distance annihilators.

You're proud of "being modern" . . . BUT JUST HOW MODERN ARE YOU? Edison can't make you modern . . . neither can the Wright brothers. Only you, yourself, can make you modern. And if you still THINK aborigine then you ARE aborigine.

Isn't It So?

Even the most successful dentist lives from hand to mouth.

Some men are born with black eyes and some have to fight for them.

Girls these days are pretty high geared—and most of them have stripped the gears.

Text for Today

Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength.—Isaiah, xl:28,29.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THE middle ear is a narrow chamber filled with air and communicating with the mouth by means of a duct, the Eustachian tube. The walls of this tube are usually pressed flat together but when the pressure in the middle ear becomes too different from that outside, they are forced open and a little air passes one way or the other. This causes the click in the ear which we experience after ascending or descending rapidly in a lift or mountain railway.

The walls of the middle ear are strong and bony except in three places: the first and largest of these is the ear-drum, and in the second and third, the fenestra ovalis and fenestra rotunda (oval window and round window). There are even more delicate membranes which separate middle and inner ear.

H. G. Wells

A chain of three minute bones, prettily joined together, runs from the ear-drum to the fenestra ovalis; because of their curious shapes these bones are called the hammer, the anvil, and the stirrup.

Sound waves, traveling down the outer ear, strike the eardrum and make it vibrate; by means of the chain of bones, the vibrations of the drum are transmitted to the fenestra ovalis.

This elaborate device is partly protective, for the hammer is so jointed to the anvil that if a violent jar occurs, such as a box on the ear, the two are disengaged and the shock is not passed on to the delicate inner structure.

But there is an even more important reason. The inner ear is filled with a watery fluid, and the properties of sound waves traveling in water are very different from those of sound waves traveling in air.

The bones act as levers and reduce the amplitude of the vibrations, but at the same time, by concentrating the energy of the vibrating ear-drum on to a window only one-twentieth of its size, they make the sound pulses more vigorous. They are a means of getting over the difficulty of transmitting sound-waves from air to water.

The inner ear is an elaborate labyrinth of passages, embedded in bone and filled with a lymph-like fluid; as we have seen, this fluid is made to vibrate when sounds fall on the outer ear.

A part only of the inner ear is concerned with hearing. The part that concerns us at present is a narrow, tapering tube, about an inch long, which is coiled into a dwindling spiral like the shell of a snail and is therefore called the cochlea.

This cochlea is divided into three compartments by a partition which runs along its whole length. On this partition the sense-cells bear stiff, hair-like projections on their upper faces, and they are surrounded by the endings of nerve-fibres; moreover they are placed on an elastic membrane and overhung by a rigid shelf.

When the fluid surrounding the apparatus vibrates the elastic membrane bounces up and down; this brings the sense cells into collision with the rigid shelf, and it is their impact with the shelf that stimulates the cells and causes them to dispatch impulses along the nerve fibres to the brain.

According to the theory they most extensively held (for there are differences of opinion here) the method of discriminating between sounds of different pitch is as follows:

The diameter of the cochlea decreases steadily from end to end of the spiral; it is a spiral staircase that dwindles to a point at the top. Since all the structures inside it decrease in proportion, the width of the elastic membrane on which the sense-cells are placed also decreases.

That is to say, since the period of vibration of an elastic body varies with its size, the different parts of this membrane are tuned to different notes.

The apparatus is like a piano or a harp, where the wires give higher notes as they decrease in length. Now, it is well known that if one sound a tuning fork near a piano, with the damping pedal down, the particular note of the tuning fork is echoed by the appropriate wire of the piano; the pulsations emitted by the tuning fork make a wire vibrate if it is tuned to the same pitch. And in a similar way rhythmical vibrations of the fluid in the inner ear only shake the particular part of the elastic membrane that is tuned to their own pitch.

Notes of different pitch affect different parts of the membrane, and so cause impulses to be sent to the brain along different nerve-fibres.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up at daybreak after hearing a loud noise along the street and it was a fellow, foxed with drink, who kept crying: "Hot icicles, a nickel a quart!" and a constable took him away. Nor could I fall asleep again, so at my labours.

At noontime drove to the Grand Concourse to walk, but the street so torn up with subway building wandered over to the old reservoir, a residential district I never saw before and back to a hotel and met Edgar Wallace, England's most prolific mystery story writer and a merry gentleman.

To a cafe for dinner, but could not eat for cupping an ear to hear a man and his wife having a jealous quarrel in the adjoining booth and such language! Then to call on Maybell and Lee Olwell, but they away, and home in the heaviest downpour I ever saw.

Near the old reservoir is a yard in which stands an iron deer. Telephone inquiry develops that such lawn ornaments still have an occasional purchaser in the metropolis. There is one dealer on Twenty-third street and another in Jersey City. One may also pick up such cast iron what-nots as a crouching tiger, a poised cupid or a robed lady with a wreathed brow carrying a shoulder urn. Most orders come from owners of large estates in the Adirondacks.

* * *

The iron deer ranges, according to size, from $75 to $350. The last one was sold to a motion picture outfit in Long Island City to be used in filming a scene from the Gay Nineties.

In an Amsterdam avenue curio shop is displayed a collection of those zippy celluloid buttons with which another generation decorated coat lapels. They bore such red typed sophistries as "O. U. Kid" "C. Me B. 4 You Do Anything" and other salty slang of the period. They were given away with cigarets and peddled at county fairs. There are a few collectors but only a few. The highest price was $10 for one once owned by Christy Matthewson.

As I recall Bill Geppert had the biggest collection of celluloid buttons in our town. He blossomed out at Sunday school one bright morning with his entire coat braided with them and even had stripes three abreast running down his trouser legs. His impious gesture not only sent him home in a jiffy but won a nice jolt of "strap oil" in the back yard. Bill never amounted to much, either. He became a newspaper man.

Another craze of that happy epoch was collecting souvenir spoons. My aunt had one that came all the way from Glasgow and was on exhibition three days in Gus Roedell's drug store window. Young girls strung them on ribbons and hung them around dresser mirrors.

Shortly after the spoon fad, prints of the Gibson girl popped into their amazing vogue. The girl with a front porch hammock and a book of these pen and ink beauties stood apart from her sisters. She had what might be known today as "a certain something." * * *

The other week I scanned through one of the old Gibson Girl books and I believe they would have become a fad in any era. No artist since has so deftly caught the spirit of the day as did C. D. Gibson. And his arm has not lost its cunning.

In one of those braggy-fronted shops on the avenue there is a doorman who is a silent half partner in the business. He believes a courteous reception of customers is a business clincher, and has proved it.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

WHEN a certain person is alluded to, why do you always speak of some member of his or her family who has gone wrong?

Possibly the person mentioned has an affliction that is discreditable. Aren't you most unkind to draw attention to this fact in conversation with others?

In your own family there may be certain members who have done things of which you are far from proud. Perhaps you have even moved from the section of the country where those lived who were not a credit to you.

This may not be common knowledge, but it should make you charitable.

Every family has at least one black sheep, if one were to hunt for it.

In this world of temptation and opportunities for going wrong, the person who has traveled an honorable course should be given full credit for it. But he should not be blamed for what some member of his family has done.

It is all one can do to keep straight personally.

To have kept to the right path is a worthy accomplishment. There are too many pitfalls ahead for the best of us to assume the "worthier than thou" attitude which accompanies the scandal bearer.
